New CS Dispute Flares Over 'Breach of Faith'

A new dispute flared today between the government and provincial civil servants. The letter, from Mr. Black to Mr. Bennett outlined the government's position on association demands, is reported to have been distributed by mail to householders in the Burnaby and Richmond areas of the Lower Mainland.

Toronto Telegram Ends Sunday Edition

TORONTO (BUP) — John Bassett, Jr., chairman and publisher of the Toronto Telegram, announced today that the Sunday Telegram will fold after the issue of July 28. Bassett said that "high publishing costs plus a disappointing circulation and advertising response to the Sunday edition have brought this decision."

THIS MOTHER HAD REAS ON TO BE GRIM-FACED

Have You Pined Much Recently For Patter of Little Feet?

AMARILLO, Tex. (UP)—A grim-faced woman sat on a city bus Thursday and watched her 4-year-old son with apprehension. The lad was bouncing around with a sack pulled firmly over his head.

feet. I left the boy with a sack over his head and when I got back he was gone.

'Ping-Pong' Pops Eyes, Striptease Net Result

LONDON (UP)—Tropical drums went "pong" and the top half of shapely Julie Martin's brief costume went "ping" Thursday night before Princess Margaret's boy friend Billy Wallace and 1,000 other socialites.

"That's the reason for the sack over his head, the disgruntled woman said. "We're on the way to the doctor to get the pot off."

Julie set the short fringes of her bikini-style costume waving like Saskatchewan wheat in a high wind as the drums beat out a torrid rhythm during the floor show of London's calypso ball.

Her two West Indian male partners danced tambourines and shook calypso gourds while Julie just shook.

6,000 Attend 'Smash Hit' Symphony Show

By AUDREY SLD. JOHNSON
The combination of perfect weather and a famous conductor turned the second summer symphony at the Butchart Gardens Thursday night into a "smash hit," in the parlance of show business.

An all-time record crowd of some 6,000 turned out for what Sir Ernest MacMillan, of Toronto, the guest conductor, called "a fairyland concert" and many hundreds were turned away because of parking problems.

On the podium Thursday night, he had led the Victoria Symphony Orchestra through a program which apparently—and rightly—delighted the music-and-garden fans.

GOOD AUDIENCE

Sir Ernest had compliments for the audience too. He had found it to be unusually attentive and well-mannered.

'Mum' Word for Her, Miss U.S. Disqualified

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The stately, stunning Miss United States who gave her name as Miss Leona Gage was disqualified from the Miss Universe contest today for being married.

Heir to the crown as fairest in the land is beautiful Miss Utah, runner-up in the Miss U.S.A. finals last Wednesday night. However, the new queen, Charlotte Sheffield, 20, of Salt Lake City, can't be among the 15 finalists in Miss Universe judging tonight because she did not compete against 32 foreign beauties in the preliminaries Thursday night.

Glenn Noakes, 19-year-old Toronto miss, was among the 15 survivors.

French Premier Backed In Move on Terrorists

PARIS (Reuters) — Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury's five-week-old government today survived a confidence vote in the National Assembly over a measure to detain suspected Moslem terrorists in France without trial.

The tough, 42-year-old premier staked the life of his young government on the bill to increase police powers within France itself. The measure aims at rounding up terrorists supporting the national rebellion in French-ruled Algeria.

It was the government's second triumph on a confidence vote in the lower house of parliament. In the first vote June 24, the Assembly approved Bourges-Maunoury's severe financial measures to deal with inflation.

SLOAN REPORT READY ON FOREST INDUSTRY

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan has completed his report on the Royal Commission inquiry into the B.C. forest industry. Officials of the Queen's Printer said today all type has been set and printing will start Monday. It is expected to be completed in six or seven weeks.

Soviet Rejects Troop Cut Offer

LONDON (UP)—Russia today rejected the United States' offer to join the Soviet Union in cutting their armed forces to 1.7 million men apiece. The U.S. offer hinged on the condition that certain political improvements be made on East-West differences.

Jet Sound Structurally, Says RCAF

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF said today in a statement that the Mark V CF-100 jet interceptor is "structurally sound."

14 Die, 80 Injured In French Train Crash

AVIGNON, France (Reuters) — An express train bringing vacationers from the Mediterranean coast, many of them foreign tourists, plunged off the track here early today, killing 14 and injuring about 80.

DATING IRISH PEER

LONDON (UP)—Reports that Princess Margaret's engagement to a handsome Irish peer would be announced today sent dozens of newsmen flocking to Buckingham Palace. But their all-night vigil outside the cold grey walls was in vain.

Nothing happened. But the rumors still persisted and a London columnist hinted broadly that even if they weren't true, Margaret's interest in 24-year-old Lord Patrick Beresford was something out of the ordinary.

Reports that an engagement announcement would be made after a private dinner-dance given at the palace by Queen Elizabeth II began at a palace garden party attended by 8,000 guests.

Palace press spokesmen said the dance was merely a "welcome-home" party for the Queen Mother, who returned from Rhodesia Wednesday.

Later it was learned Lord Patrick originally had been one of the dinner guests, but had called to say he couldn't make it. He was in Ireland, where his brother, the Marquess of Waterford, will marry next week.

Margaret, who will be 27 next month, has been dating Beresford as often as three times a week. She turned down an invitation to the Marquess' wedding, presumably to avoid offending the Irish. No member

Devastating New U.S. Air Missile

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—The first air-to-air atomic rocket fired from a plane burst over the desert today with a flash that paled the morning sun.

The air defence command's newest and most powerful weapon exploded at 7 a.m., PDT.

The vivid fireball flared in the target area at an altitude of more than 15,000 feet and sent up a pink doughnut-shaped cloud.

The nuclear rocket was launched from a Northrop F-89 Scorpion jet fighter.

As the rocket's cloud rose in stately fashion into clear blue sky, the vapor trail of an airplane, probably the launcher, cut sharply away to the north.

The launching plane was the leader in a formation of three Scorpion jets. The rocket was the Genie, manufactured by Douglas Aircraft Co.

Power of the weapon was announced only as "well below nominal." A nominal bomb is rated as the energy equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT.

Col. J. H. Atkinson, commander of the Air Defence Command, disclosed before the test that air-to-air rockets with atomic warheads already are in the inventory of this force.

The weapons are designed to knock down invading bombers. Col. Atkinson said defence command planes do not carry these weapons but they could be put into use in a matter of minutes.

HELD MANY TESTS
The program to develop the nuclear air-to-air rocket has been in progress since 1949 and many tests have been run on the atomic device and the rocket.

Today, however, was the first time one has been launched from a plane at a stated target.

The target in this test was a pre-designated point in space, the exact altitude and distance from the launching plane of which were not disclosed.

Within 10 minutes after the detonation the cloud was only a faint misty smudge in the sky over the hazy blue mountains rimming Yuca Flat.

When the rocket exploded, five defence command officers were on the ground directly beneath it to study blast and flash effects. They had no protection, and were not expected to need any.

DEREK IBBOTSON ... runs 3.57.2 mile

Briton Runs Mile In 3.57.2

LONDON (AP)—Derek Ibbotson of Britain tonight ran a record-breaking mile in three minutes 57.2 seconds to defeat a great international field before a roaring field of 35,000 fans.

The previous record was 3:58 set by Australian John Landy at Turku, Finland, June 21, 1954.

The first four runners in today's race broke the four-minute barrier, first time this has ever been done.

Ron Delany was second in 3:58.9, Stanislav Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia was third in 3:59.1, Ken Wood of Britain was fourth in 3:59.3.

B.C. Shots in Final
BISLEY, Eng. (Reuters)—The semifinal stage of the Queen's Prize competition today produced a strong overseas challenge for the £250 prize and signed portrait given by the Queen each year to the Empire's champion rifle shot.

Among the six Canadians in Saturday's final were LAC H. Simonski, RCAF, Vancouver, and RSM S. C. Bell, Royal Canadian Army Cadets, Kitimat, B.C.

Turns out that Miss America is the mother of two kids. That's two who weren't for the show.

If this weather gets much better we'd better start thinkin' about developin' a tourist industry.

There are times when Victoria is a pretty good place to live. One was last night, when the orchestra and the fountains were playin' at the same time.

Burial on Nile For Aga Khan

ASWAN, Egypt (CP)—The Aga Khan was buried today in the courtyard of his glistening white villa on the edge of the Nile.

RUSS PRAISE EISENHOWER, RAP DULLES

LONDON (Reuters)—President Eisenhower was praised and John Foster Dulles denounced by Moscow radio today for press conference statements they made this week.

The radio said Eisenhower "hit the nail right on the head" Thursday in saying that the risk connected with holding another Geneva "summit" meeting was insignificant compared with the importance of achieving mutual understanding.

But it said the U.S. secretary of state, in his Tuesday press conference, showed himself to be "completely blind politically" in saying the United States helped to bring about Russian party and government purges announced earlier this month.

Hooded Men Beat Mother Of Liberace

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The mother of Liberace was brutally beaten and kicked by two hooded men who attacked her Thursday night in the garage of the Liberace home in nearby Sherman Oaks.

Police said that Mrs. Frances Liberace, 65, went on an errand into the garage adjoining the home she shares with her pianist son. She tried to return to the house when she saw two men in the garage.

Mrs. Liberace said they pushed her to the floor and began kicking her.

"Hit her again, we'll have something to laugh about," she quoted one of the men as saying.

After they left she crawled into the house and telephoned a friend before she lost consciousness.

A physician treated her for multiple bruises and a possible back injury.

Bryant Sees Hope For Gorge Park Aid

Capital Improvement District Commission was "very receptive" Thursday to a renewed request for $106,000 to beautify Gorge Park, Esquimalt Coun. James Bryant said today.

Acting in the absence of Reeve A. C. Wurtele, Coun. Bryant talked to the commission "for about 20 minutes" and produced maps showing the Gorge is the only easily accessible park with swimming facilities in the west part of Greater Victoria.

"I think if more money is to be allocated this year, the Gorge would have a certain amount of priority," he said later, because Esquimalt didn't get a cent from the first grant.

Esquimalt council supported Coun. Bryant's resolution to press for Gorge development at a meeting Monday.

His brief to the commission

Ismailli leaders in pink kerchiefs and golden turbans gathered to witness the burial of their former spiritual leader.

Three sheikhs chanted the Koran beside the Aga Khan's coffin for hours before the burial of the man who led the Ismailli sect for nearly 71 years.

A mausoleum will be built later atop a hill 200 yards from the villa, which the Aga Khan named Nour el-Sallam—light of peace. It is on the west bank of the Nile, across from Aswan, which, the ancient Egyptians called the "Land of the Setting Sun."

Throughout the night, the three Moslem chieftains knelt by the coffin, reciting the Koran in relays.

In another room of the villa where she and the Aga Khan had spent so many happy winters, the Begum waited with three ladies-in-waiting.

RECEIVES HOMAGE

In his hotel suite, the young Aga Khan received Ismailli delegations in private audience. Each kissed his hand in homage.

The bows which accompanied his passage through the hotel lobby seemed to embarrass the Ismailli's new spiritual ruler, who would have been a senior at Harvard University this winter—had his grandfather not picked him.

Mrs. Linna Toye Dies; Funeral Rites Saturday

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. P. Miller and Mrs. C. Leask; Victoria; a son, Percy, in the United States; nine grandchildren, and 15 great-grandchildren.

Britons Face Crippling Bus Strike

LONDON (Reuters)—Thousands of Britons cut short their vacations today and started the week home a day early to beat a country-wide bus strike.

The strike, timed for midnight tonight, will stop most bus services outside the London area.

Municipal services in the bigger cities will not be affected but at least 100,000 bus workers with 74 private provincial transport companies intend to strike to back wage demands.

Lines formed at country railroad stations while vacation resorts issued appeals to private motorists to offer lifts to returning visitors.

The state-run British railroads, already operating a full summer schedule, announced it would not be able to run any extra trains while bus companies put every available vehicle on the road.

At Margate, a resort on Britain's south coast, the municipal council said if necessary it will run stranded visitors home in furniture trucks.

The worst-hit areas probably will be south Wales and industrial areas in northern England and Scotland where many firms are shutting down this weekend for annual two-week vacation.

If the strike goes past the weekend it will hit factories and schools in many areas.

Diabetes may be recognized in an early stage by an increased sugar content in the blood stream.

'Buried' Brother Much Alive

CHICAGO (AP)—A brother and a sister were convinced shockingly Thursday that they had made a grave mistake in burying a man they had identified as their brother.

He showed up at their home alive. Daniel Gallagher, 51, appeared at the home of his brother, Thomas, and his married sister.

Mrs. Mary Mellon, 55, and as sured them he was not dead. Daniel has lived with his brother and sister for several years—but he has been absent from home for a couple of weeks.

July 10, Thomas Gallagher and Mrs. Mellon identified a body of a son and daughter and sepulchred under an elevated railroad platform as that of Daniel. The man appeared to have died of natural causes. Thomas said the for drunkenness.

NURSES VOTE TO STRIKE

NEW WESTMINSTER (BUP)—Nurses at the Royal Columbian Hospital have voted 167 to two to strike July 30 for higher wages. About 215 nurses are involved in the threatened walkout. Some 53 nurses at Penticton are set to walk off the job Monday, while 230 nurses at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver will take a strike vote the same day. A conciliation board recommended a basic salary of $260 a month for the hospital here and the Vancouver Hospital, but the proposal was turned down by the hospital boards. Nurses now receive $240 a month.

Press Muzzle Try Charged By Editor

PETERBOROUGH Ont. (BUP)—Robertson Davies, playwright, author and editor of the Peterborough Examiner, testified Thursday that a police commissioner had tried to persuade him to stop criticizing the local force in print. Davies told the Royal Commission investigating the police force that Judge John De Navarre Kennedy, senior police commissioner, had urged him to throw his weight behind the new regime and print articles flattering to police chief John Naples. "The judge and I had difficulty in agreeing what was legitimate news and what was propaganda, but articles could not be written on the mere fact the chief was a splendid fellow," Davies said.

British Tories Back Canada Economy Talks

LONDON (CP)—The Canadian call for a Commonwealth economic conference has won support from more than 70 Conservative members of the British House of Commons. William Aitken, formerly of Toronto, and nephew of Canadian-born publisher Lord Beaverbrook, is among the sponsors of a motion, tabled in the Commons, expressing wholehearted support for Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposal for a Commonwealth conference at the "earliest possible moment."

'Confession' Re-Opens 1954 Sheppard Case

DELAND, Fla. (UP)—The celebrated 1954 Sheppard murder case was reopened today on the basis of a "confession" by a Florida convict that he slugged a Cleveland, Ohio, woman the night Marilyn Sheppard was slain.

Ohio Gov. C. William O'Neill announced in Columbus that Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, now serving a life term in prison for his wife's murder, will undergo a lie detector test. Sheppard would not consent to a lie test in early stages of the murder case but later asked for one. He was denied the test at that time.

O'Neill told his news conference that he is "considering" evidence presented to him concerning the story told in Deland by Joseph Wedler, a blond, bushy-haired prisoner who said he wanted to "get a murder off my mind."

Until today, Wedler's story had been accepted as just another yarn—25th in the number of "confessions" that have come out of the Sheppard case.

The Ohio governor said he is granting Sheppard's request for a lie detector test concerning the murder of his wife. Sheppard has maintained his innocence throughout, claiming Marilyn

KHRUSHCHEV WOOS GOODWILL OF TITO

MOSCOW (UP)—Soviet Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev's surprise meetings Thursday night with Communist leaders from Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria were aimed at improving relations between Marshal Tito and the Soviet bloc, informed sources said today. Khrushchev first met with a high-ranking Yugoslav delegation headed by Vice-President Aleksander Rankovic and Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj at his villa outside Moscow. Then he met with Bulgarian party leader Georg Zhivkov and his Albanian counterpart, Enver Hoxha.

was killed by a bushy-haired intruder. Private investigators meanwhile were working here trying to determine whether Wedler told the truth or spun the story in an effort to win publicity or freedom.

Broadening of $28 Tax Rebate Mocks Legislature, Says Gregory

New interpretation placed on the provincial Home-Owner Grant Act to allow more persons to claim the $28 rebate makes a "mockery" of legislative processes, Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory said today. "Both (the act) and the explanatory notes to the bill as it was introduced on first reading are specific that before residents can qualify for the grant the home must contain not more than two house-keeping units," Mr. Gregory said.

"It makes a mockery of our legislative process that the act should in effect be amended without reference to the legislature which passed it." Under the new ruling, persons who rent out as many as one house-keeping unit and three single rooms are eligible for the rebate. Previously the limit was one house-keeping unit. The act makes no reference to single or "sleeping" rooms. Change in interpretation followed a campaign by city Social Credit MLA Donald

Smith, who was supported by the Victoria Sacred Constituency Association at a meeting Monday night. "I am satisfied," Mr. Gregory said, "that the 'department of finance officials' who are credited with having made this interpretation, if it was in fact they who made it, were subjected to great political pressure."

Split on Prices

A CLEAR SPLIT HAS LATELY developed between the economic thinking of the American Congress and the Canadian Parliament.

In Canada Parliament is about to cut taxes and, apparently, reduce interest rates, regardless of the inflationary results. In the United States a Congressional committee, after a long study of inflation, has come down decisively against tax reductions and for high interest rates.

The committee's report is all the more remarkable because it is signed by some leading Democrats who, in the past, have been highly critical of the Eisenhower Government's hard money policies. These critics now agree that the Government has been right in its attempt to curb prices by fiscal restraint.

It is true, the committee says, that everything the Government has been able to do by maintaining high interest rates and budget surpluses has not succeeded in curbing the rise of prices. The cost-of-living has advanced nine times in as many months and now stands at an all-time peak (as it does in Canada).

Yet without a tough fiscal policy, the committee finds, the situation would now be much worse than it is. That undoubtedly is true of Canada also.

It is a striking and encouraging fact indeed that the American politicians now preparing for a Congressional election a year hence are not prepared to provide the electoral bait of tax reductions or low interest rates.

"It should be recognized," says the committee's report, "that under present economic conditions widespread demands for tax reductions cannot be met without inflationary consequences unless government spending is prevented from rising as rapidly as revenue."

There is no prospect in the United States of any large reduction in government spending. There is no such prospect in Canada either. On the contrary, the American budget has risen sharply in the last year and the present Government of Canada is committed to a large increase in spending (unless it is prepared to slash the defence budget, the only easy area of economy).

The Congressional committee supports the general view of the Eisenhower and the St. Laurent Governments that a time of inflation calls for revenue surpluses, repayment of debt and high interest rates.

There seems to be no likelihood of any basic change in the existing American policy, unless, of course, the nation experiences a drop in business activity which would call for a change of policy.

Canada, on the other hand, proposes to change its policy even while business is booming, prices are rising and inflation growing.

Perhaps we could profit from our neighbors' example and undertake a non-partisan parliamentary investigation of a problem which, in this country, has been distorted and bedeviled by partisanship in an election year.

Theory or Practice?

FROM TIME TO TIME ON THIS continent mock aerial attacks are carried out as a test of military and civilian defences. Many of them are on paper only, with headquarters experts determining the extent of attack and damage from their theoretical calculations.

The public has become accustomed to reading about such tests. Most of us pay little more than theoretical attention to the theoretical results. Yet the casualty figures are something more than wild guesses.

In many cases they represent the expert estimates of men who have devoted years to determining the explosive capabilities of atomic and hydrogen bombs. They give as accurate a picture as is possible of what we might expect in the event of a mass air attack in this nuclear era. We might well give some study to the reports.

Recently, for instance, a theoretical H-bomb attack was launched against population centres comprising more than half the population of the United States. It was surmised that a major portion of these people would have been killed or wounded by the attack. It is difficult for the mind to grasp the significance of such destruction. But by all accounts it would be a very likely—perhaps inescapable—part of any future world war.

The possibility of such a catastrophe is at once the reason for prolonged attempts to achieve atomic disarmament and the reason for maintaining adequate atomic defences.

Nuclear weapons are a definite threat to the continued existence of mankind. But, in a narrower sense, they are also a safeguard, since they are a deterrent to attack on the West by the Communist world.

For this reason disarmament can be considered feasible only if it is mutual. And to ensure that it is mutual there must be guarantees—such as those contained in arrangements for full international inspection. Until such guarantees can be imposed—and Russia for one is still reluctant to agree to them despite its assurances of peaceful intent—the world must live in two armed camps.

But the sword of destruction hangs by a hair over both of them.

A Job for Georgi

MR. GEORGI MALENKOV MAY not like his new job but, for a deposed Communist prime minister, he is a lucky man. If he had been purged by his old friend and idol, Josef Stalin, Mr. Malenkov would not have lived long to repent his ideological deviations. He would not have received even a decent funeral.

But things have changed under the amiable Mr. Khrushchev, Stalin's successor. Thus when Mr. Malenkov is convicted, in secret trial, of high crimes against the state he is not executed; he is given a soft job managing an electrical plant in Kazakhstan.

This will be rather different from his old job of managing Russia but it has its compensations. There is, perhaps, a road back from Kazakhstan to Moscow. There was no road back from Stalin's jail yard when the firing party had finished its early morning shift.

In this odd affair Mr. Khrushchev has demonstrated not only his complete self-confidence and a breezy contempt for his enemy, but also a shrewd political talent.

After denouncing Stalin's countless murders, he could hardly eliminate Mr. Malenkov without a slight appearance of inconsistency. By installing that fallen titan comfortably in the electrical plant the new dictator proves to all the free democrats of Russia that under his rough exterior there beats a heart of gold. And Mr. Malenkov may turn out to be very good at making electricity.

Political Take-Off

LADY SYLVIA BROOKE, WIFE of the former owner of Sarawak, reveals that Borneo head-hunters are really very affable fellows, with a great sense of humor. She speaks, of course, from a close and expert knowledge of the natives, and explains that their custom of collecting heads is really part of their system of protocol.

A young man must amass a certain number of heads, for instance, before he can marry. The size of his collection of cranial trophies will determine his eventual status in heaven.

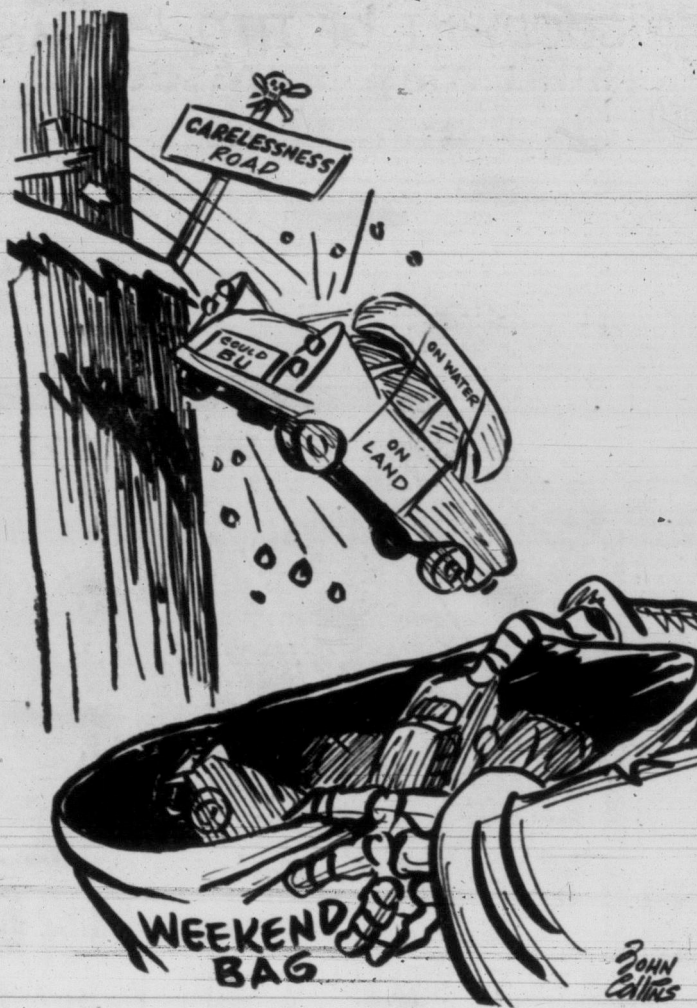

The similarity between the Borneo system and our own political methods is striking. A budding politician must have accounted for a satisfactory number of political heads of one kind or another before he may move up the ladder of his career. And his total bag of scalps will certainly determine his relative position in the higher realms of the political hierarchy.

His collection, though bloodless in the physical sense, will be no less invested with human sweat and tears than its Borneo counterpart.

Only one major difference is evident. Whereas Lady Brooke is impressed by the good humor with which the Borneo headhunter scores, so to speak, it is a rare hunter in our political jungles who can top off a head with a pleasant smile. Our exponents could learn much of finesse, no doubt, from Borneo practitioners of the gentle art of decapitation.

Complacency Riding ICBM

IN this era of complacency, nobody seems to care very much about such matters. But it is well to bear in mind that the United States is engaged in a deadly race with the Soviets, even while the so-called "disarmament" talks are in progress in London.

The object of the race, which will certainly not be halted by the London talks, is to achieve superiority in missiles, the new weapons which will in the future surely dominate the world's air space, and thus the world. A decisive Soviet victory in this race could very well bring true Nikita Khrushchev's grinning boast—"we will bury you."

These facts lend an unhappy significance to a proposal which President Eisenhower is seriously considering, and which he may well already have approved. The proposal is to hold all expenditures for missile production to an arbitrary 10 per cent of the total defence budget.

If the President finally approves the proposal, it can only mean a very sharp cutback in the whole American missile development effort, and thus virtually make certain Soviet victory in the deadly missile race.

At the same time, massive dollops of soothing syrup are being handed out at high official levels, to justify the proposed cutback. The official line, as faithfully reported, for example, in the New York Times, is that the United States is comfortably ahead of the Soviet Union in the missile race.

'Nothing to Worry About'

Although admittedly "the Russians fire a great many more test vehicles than the United States," so the official line goes, this is nothing to worry about. On the contrary, it can be regarded as good news, since it has "stimulated the belief by experts here that the Russian electronic devices are not as advanced as those available in the United States."

According to this marvelous example of official complacency, the more missiles the Soviets test, the greater the supposed American lead in the missile race. If the reasoning is accepted, we must be very far ahead indeed.

For the Soviets have been firing intermediate range ballistic missiles, or IRBMs, in large numbers for at least eighteen months, even according to the official dispensers of soothing syrup. The rate of testing has reached higher than five a month. By contrast, the United States has successfully tested precisely one non-operational IRBM—the Army's "Jupiter." The Air Force "Thor" aborted on its first test, and the Navy's "Polaris" is still a long way from the testing stage.

To anyone not an official dispenser of soothing syrup, these facts must mean precisely what they seem to mean—that the Soviets, as Premier Bulganin has repeatedly implied in his threats to various Western European countries, have stocks of operational IRBMs, which the United States certainly does not have.

As for the ICBM, the intercontinental missile which is the grand prize of the missile race, the official line is that the Soviets are "in a very early motor-testing stage"; and that anyway, for reasons which remain mysterious, the Soviets are not really interested in missiles capable of reaching the United States, which is certainly regarded by the Soviets as the main enemy.

Flat Contradiction

There is evidence which flatly contradicts this bit of soothing syrup. The nature of the evidence is classified, but there is also convincing overt evidence which points very clearly in the same direction. For the Soviets have publicly and officially announced that they intend to launch thirty satellite vehicles into space this year, and forty more next year.

Such Soviet advance boasts have always proved accurate in the past. In this case one must either assume that the boasts are empty, at great and unnecessary cost to Soviet prestige. Or one must assume that the Soviets are very far indeed beyond a "very early motor-testing stage" in developing the ICBM.

For a successful satellite launching requires a missile with the power to attain "escape velocity," a higher velocity than is required for an ICBM. It has been reliably reported that the Soviets will actually use their ICBM model, known as "T-3" to launch their satellites. In any case, the experts all agree that the expected Soviet satellite launchings will prove beyond doubt that they have made giant strides towards an operational ICBM.

About Year Ahead

All this does not necessarily mean that the Soviets are unchallengeably ahead in the missile race (although the best expert opinion is that they are about a year ahead). It does not mean that American skills and resources are insufficient to win the race. But it certainly does mean that a combination of soothing syrup and wholly arbitrary budget ceilings will not win for the United States this race which must, at whatever cost, be won.

As Our Readers See It

Too Late to Give

Just how badly does the Red Cross need blood?

This afternoon (Wednesday) my wife went down to the clinic to give some blood.

The clinic hours were 1 to 4.30 p.m. At approximately 4.25 p.m. I went into the clinic to wait for my wife who was then having some tea after having given some blood.

At about 4.31 p.m. (I may be wrong here—it might have been 4.30½) a man came in wanting to give some blood.

After some fluttering around by the ladies on duty he was told that as it was after 4.30 p.m. the clinic was closed and "could he come back tonight?"

"No, he couldn't," he said.

More fluttering, then "We're awfully sorry, but it's too late."

Five minutes later I counted four Red Cross nurses emerge from the ladies' lounge and leave.

Would it have been asking too much for perhaps two ladies to volunteer to stay fifteen minutes overtime to take a pint of this man's "wanted" blood?

This man wasn't trying to sell anything. He merely wished to give a pint of blood to the Red Cross.

First—An Assessment

The youth movement which is being formed will have its benefits in that the standard of behavior will be raised. However, as usual, this is another attempt to patch up a bad job of child-raising.

If this generation is expected to contribute constructively to tomorrow's progress, we will have to teach them more than the art of entertaining themselves. Some of the lessons to learn are how to direct the power of emotion into constructive, intellectual activities and find the proper relationship of entertainment-in-life.

Teach youth how to understand themselves and to appreciate the qualities of their fellowmen which requires the realization that each person contributes to the life of another and that no man can to a law unto himself. All of mankind is subject to greater laws—the law of action and reaction, and as you sow so shall you reap.

These are invaluable goals for any youth and parent, but first they must assess themselves. "Why am I the person I am?"

Twilight of Democracy

The recent federal election and the two last provincial elections in British Columbia proved quite plainly that democratic governments have passed, or been pushed, into twilight land. To imagine that any power other than that of the electorate is to be discounted is indeed farcical.

We have already experienced the present Prime Minister of Canada proving himself to be quite in accord with our—or what we imagine to be our—foreign policy. We also have the new minister of defence—already practically apologizing for having misunderstood the policy of his predecessor. The former, combined with many strange announcements being made, point to a nice cosy coalition in the making under the euphemistic use of "unity" in Canada.

We know now from experience what coalition has spawned in British Columbia—the present hollow mockery of so-called government—because of the impotence of the legislative body caused by a feeble opposition, and the already screaming embryo of a dictatorship aborning.

Should a coalition evolve federally—without benefit of clergy in the form of the electorate—then indeed will the real Canadians find themselves wandering in the wilderness. Temporary harmony could prove a magical soporific for the politically unwary, and serve as a perfect smoke screen to disguise the building of a temple for political "expediency."

In plain English "power at any price," under any label, for what and for "whom."

Smiles That Make Him Happy

So impressed was Dave Boyer of the National Geographic Magazine with the current production of Jerry Gosley's Smile Show at the Langham Court Theatre, that a two-page spread of color pictures of the group is to be featured in a story which he is doing on British Columbia to be published at the beginning of the Centennial Year.

During a three-and-a-half hours session Wednesday night at the theatre some 30 to 40 pictures were taken from which will be chosen those best suited to portray the atmosphere of the annual summer production.

The National Geographical Magazine has a circulation of about 2½ millions.

A Plan for East-West Contacts

From The Ottawa Citizen

AS PART of a program for promoting East-West contacts, the United States State Department has formally proposed to the Soviet Union that a series of uncensored radio and TV talks be arranged. Leaders of each of the two countries would be permitted to speak directly to the other's people.

Mr. Nikita Khrushchev seems to have created quite a stir by his recent TV appearance in the U.S. He appeared a rather genial and not unreasonable character and the thought has arisen that some American leaders might make a similarly disarming impression on the Russians. Senator Lyndon Johnson, majority leader in the Senate and a Democrat, evidently thinks so, and for the Republicans Senator William Knowland has pronounced in favor. Russian leaders, however, have intimated that in their opinion Russians would find the proposed broadcasts just a waste of time. So the State Department may calculate that its proposal will please Senator Johnson without too much risk of acceptance.

In any case, a set program of reciprocal talks would lend itself only too readily to verbal duelling. American and Russian leaders both being zealous advocates of their respective ways of life. Possibly non-governmental agencies could work out a series of temperate, informative talks. But better still would be the gradual relaxing of barriers to communication until Russians and Americans could visit back and forth without fear and fuss, and exchange ideas urbanely without trying to convert one another.

Access to the News

By WILLIAM H. STRINGER in The Christian Science Monitor

A great many Americans are probably unaware of the fact that "freedom of information" is a matter requiring perpetual alertness and frequent battle in this great democratic land of ours. (The United States).

Someone, somewhere in government is invariably deciding that it is "in the public interest" to withhold this or that piece of information from the press—and hence from the public. And the label "secret" is sometimes stamped on official documents when disclosure would jeopardize no vital national interest.

The Constitution guarantees "freedom of the press." But only recently Secretary of State John Foster Dulles maintained that this freedom embraced only the right to print and publish, not necessarily the right to gather information. On this ground he justified the denial of freedom to reporters to cover the newly in Red China. And only more recently the Commission on Government Security proposed stiff penalties for newsmen who knowingly disclosed secret government data (fines up to $10,000 and imprisonment up to five years).

Must Be Informed

By and large most every American would agree that, for democracy to function effectively, citizens must be widely and ably informed. There is hardly a government agency where this basic viewpoint is not strongly endorsed. But in actual practice all sorts of surprising dodges and roadblocks are strewn in the path marked "freedom of information." For instance:

1. A surprisingly large proportion of committee hearings held by Congress each year are still sessions in secret—marked "executive." Strangely enough, the House Armed Services Committee held only 38 per cent of its sessions behind closed doors last year, whereas the Education and Labor Committee—which had no reason at all to be secretive—held 92 per cent of its sessions in secret.

2. City councils, town school boards, even state legislative committees often exhibit a similar passion for anonymity.

3. Whereas in Washington's executive branch, President Eisenhower has made effective use of his press conferences and Secretary Dulles has faithfully met the press every week, some members of the Eisenhower Cabinet have held almost no press conferences. Some, however, are quite willing to meet and talk with newsmen individually.

4. The Department of Defence has been particularly sensitive to "news leaks," so much so that on occasion the usual channels of information have temporarily run dry. The problem of when to release information on new weapons—whether for instance an Air Force request to tell more about guided missiles is "handing it to the Russians on a silver platter" or is actually advising the taxpayer of what he has a right to know—is, of course, a very difficult problem.

The tussle between press and government is nothing new. But the years of the "cold war," the arms race, and Communist espionage have produced added demands for secrecy in military and technical fields. In the realm of congressional committee hearings, the American Society of Newspaper Editors' Freedom of Information Committee has lodged frequent protests, but made little headway, with committee chairmen.

Unpopular

Now the severe proposal of the Commission on Government Security has produced new debate. Denounced in Congress and in the press, the recommendation for sharp penalties on newsmen is not likely to be adopted.

When is a "secret" label justified? The Roosevelt deal with Stalin at Yalta to give the Soviet Union two extra votes in the United Nations (for the Ukraine and Byelorussia) was stamped "top secret." It shouldn't have been concealed, and newsmen ferreted it out. The resignation letter of Gen. Matthew Ridgway as Army Chief of Staff, criticizing emphasis on air power, was stamped "classified." A newspaper printed its contents and no military secrets were involved. On the other hand, a wartime hint by a newspaper that the United States had solved a Japanese military code was dangerous flirtation with American security.

No one wants to publish data that would aid the enemy. The press is on the prowl because it has discovered too many occasions where officials have called executive sessions or reached for the "secret" stamp to hide unfavorable news, play down mistakes, or even to conceal fraud.

Russell Wiggin says challengingly in his volume, "Freedom or Secrecy": "The information of the people is the foundation of our whole political system. Secrecy threatens that foundation, on whatever pretext or for whatever good reason it is invoked."

Too Many 'Softies'?

WHEN I was much younger I spent a couple of months in digs in London with two professional fighters. They were good boys. Both held Canadian championships and, overseas, Jimmy Wilde was keeping an eye on them.

Our association was happy. But occasionally, in the exuberance of youth, they'd catch me out in the backyard of the place where we lived and throw a couple of jabs at my midriff. A jab thrown by a professional fighter doesn't travel far, but it lands with a jolt. When I stopped one of those playful punches I knew I'd been hit.

My anguished reaction used to nearly convulse the fighters. They'd roar with laughter and tell me I had to toughen up. "You're a softie," they'd say.

I didn't suffer much. I could run faster than they could and I found that you didn't have to be an intellectual giant to tie the boys up mentally. A little fast talk and you had their minds off the business of proving my softness.

Still, I was honest enough to admit I was soft by their standards. My design for living hadn't toughened up my stomach muscles enough to withstand short, sharp jabs.

LOCAL ANALOGY

The experience comes back to me as I read and hear about adult reaction to juvenile hoodlums. The average adult doesn't like the bad behaviour of a small minority of punks one bit. Grown-ups have all sorts of vocal remedies to offer. They seldom pass the vocal stage.

The adult may be very positive in his views of handling the brawling teenager, but he usually falls just short of making a stand. "You've heard it in a dozen different versions: 'If any young punk did that to me, I'd beat the can off him.'"

Seldom do you hear of any juvenile "cans" being beaten off. Maybe that's because young hoods don't pick on adults who would beat their cans off. Or maybe the adult revises his can-beating theories when confronted with the actuality.

There's a pretty rational explanation for such revisions. You hear it from teachers whose associates have been threatened or insulted by swashbuckling young squirts who draw courage from protected positions or from superiority of numbers.

"Look at it this way," goes the explanation. "Say you tee off on one of these punks—and with every justification. Fine, you settle his hash right then, and there, if you're big enough. But what happens when you return home and find your windows broken? What happens when you come out of a show or a meeting and find your tires slashed?"

You hear, indirectly, the comment of merchants about Yates Street cowboys.

"Sure they're a nuisance and often worse," goes the report of a store-owner's comment. "Something should be done about them. The police ought to step in. But I'm in no position to lay a formal complaint and identify myself. Plate glass costs money and I like my store."

INEVITABLE RESULT

The result seems inevitable. The young moron with exhibitionist tendencies, or the kid who is bright enough but suffers from some kink the psychologists can explain, figures he can get away with a bit more of the rough stuff. I may be wrong, but it's my belief that all youngsters advancing into their later teens, keep pushing at the bounds of discipline. Often enough they're entitled to. Or at least society has changed so much that restrictions applicable to an earlier generation seem obsolete now.

So you have the punks pushing, pushing—trying a little bit more, stretching the inch to the foot, to the mile. They're breaking new and, to them, exciting ground in asserting themselves. And they're getting away with it because so many adults aren't prepared to stick their necks out.

The psychology of the street gang that Hitler used for his own purposes gains strength. Who's to stand up against it and possibly take the rap?

It seems to me that the whole adult community will have to make a stand. The adult community isn't conditioned particularly well for the job, but maybe it ought to get into shape.

Perhaps we grown-ups are taking the position I took with my good-natured but occasionally boisterous room-mates. Maybe we're taking evasive action when we ought to toughen up and put ourselves in a position to hand it out instead of taking it.

Complicated ABC Game

NEW YORK—Canada is involved at the moment in a game of ABC's, combined with musical chairs.

The chairs involved are those at the horseshoe table in the chamber of the Security Council, and Canada is a leading player in this game because her name begins with the letter C.

This may sound like jolly fun, but the diplomats don't think so. It was a subject of earnest discussion at the recent London meeting of the Commonwealth Prime Ministers, and it is believed to be the subject of some fairly un-jolly brain-busting just now in the department of external affairs at Ottawa.

The background to the situation is this: The Security Council at present consists of the five permanent members—the United Kingdom, the United States, the Soviet Union, Nationalist China and France; and six non-permanent members—Australia, Colombia, Cuba, Iraq, the Philippines and Sweden.

The non-permanent members sit on the council for two-year terms, and those whose terms are up at the end of this year are Cuba, the Philippines and Australia. (Actually the Philippines has been on the council for only one year—the seat she occupies is one that used to be regarded as the "Eastern European" seat under a verbal agreement which broke down in 1955. After a voting deadlock in the General Assembly, a compromise was reached under which Yugoslavia occupied the seat for one year, and the Philippines for the second half of the two-year term.)

The seat being vacated by Australia is generally regarded as the "Commonwealth" seat, and in the alphabetical rotation within the Commonwealth group of nations, the country in line for it is Canada.

IN TWO MINDS

But Canada, though she probably will wind up taking the council seat and has no qualms about the responsibility involved, is reported to be of two minds about it. The reason for this is that, again referring to the alphabet, the Commonwealth nations from Canada are Ceylon, Ghana, India, and, within the next 12 months, the emerging nation of Malaya. If they come up in that rotation, it would mean four African or Asian nations in the Commonwealth Security Council seat for a total of eight years before another "Old Commonwealth" nation presents itself, in the person of New Zealand.

This would do a lot to meet the demands of the African and Asian group of nations for increased representation on the Security Council, where they are sadly under-represented at present. But whether it would sit well with the "old" members of the Commonwealth is another matter, and Canada is believed to have considered passing her chance for a council seat at this time and perhaps taking her turn two or four years hence. Canada has served one term on the Security Council, in 1948-49.

The so-called "Commonwealth seat" is not the only one that is causing headaches just now.

The strongest contender for the seat being vacated by the Philippines is Japan, and at this writing it appears quite likely that she will get it, though perhaps only after a long and bitter fight in the Assembly. Russia is certain to propose that the seat now revert to a country from Eastern Europe, most likely Poland.

Japan's candidacy creates an interesting dilemma for India, long leading voice for increased African-Asian membership of the Security Council. India backed the Soviet candidate in 1955, and has said on a number of occasions that the seat rightfully belongs to Eastern Europe.

FURTHER COMPLICATION

Japan is an Asian nation—would India withdraw her support from the Soviet candidate in favor of Japan? The situation is further complicated by the rivalry which has developed between India and Japan for the leadership of African-Asian group. India has been the strongest voice within the group for several years, but Japan is rapidly increasing her influence and prestige, and a seat on the Security Council would further strengthen her bid for a role of real significance at the United Nations.

India herself is not presently anxious for a Security Council seat, not only because her Commonwealth membership ensures her of one in due course, but reportedly because she hopes eventually to become a permanent member of the council under a scheme to enlarge the council's membership, now that total UN membership has expanded to 81.

The proposal to enlarge the council has come up several times, but always has foundered on the Soviet Union's insistence that nothing be done until Communist China becomes a member of the UN. India has been doing everything in her power to bring that about—she took the lead at the last session in trying unsuccessfully to promote Peiping's cause in the Assembly, and no doubt will take similar action at the Assembly session opening Sept. 17.

As for the council seat being vacated by Cuba, the most likely candidate seems to be Panama. Here again, the African-Asian group may decide to challenge, since they feel Latin America is over-represented on the council, while Africa-Asia is under-represented.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Start May Be Made On Potted Flowers

There is scarcely a gardener who would not like to have some kind of home grown potted bulbs in flower during the January cold spell, yet it is not easy to accomplish.

A start may be made now, if bulbs from last season are on hand. Freesia, ixia (corn lily), tritonia (allied to the garden mont breia), Sparaxis tricolor and streptanthus (another interesting bulb from the Cape of Good Hope) may all be removed from the pots of old soil, and started again for flowering next winter and early spring.

Freesia will be the earliest to flower, probably followed by sparaxis and the others. All require what is known as cool house treatment, that is, rooting in a cool, shaded place outdoors protected from heavy rain. After Sept. 1, the pots should be in any airy sunny place indoors, with a temperature not over 60 deg. F. and preferably down to 45-60 deg. F. at night.

It is not advisable to depend on daffodils to bloom by Christmas, in fact the only narcissi which will come in on time for the winter are the Paper White and Soleil D'Or. If obtainable, these may be planted as soon as found for sale locally.

Hyacinths if planted by early October and rooted in a dark, cool place will bloom early in the new year.

Tulips are somewhat more difficult to handle, since they need to be brought on in a dark warm place after rooting, and only put into the light after color shows.

With narcissi (including daffodils), tulips and hyacinths no good results will be gained by using bulbs on hand—only top size bulbs will repay the work involved.

CCF Honors Chief, Pioneers

SASKATOON (CP) — National Leader M. J. Coldwell and 36 other CCF party pioneers were honored Thursday night at the annual Saskatchewan CCF convention.

They were among the 130 men and a few women who in 1932 pitched tents and lived on the Saskatoon exhibition grounds while the formation of the farmer-labor party was deliberated.

It was in this group that Mr. Coldwell, now 69, came under the leadership of J. S. Woodsworth who was to lead the CCF through its first eight years.

Premier T. C. Douglas, presenting a scroll to the national leader, said that for 25 years Mr. Coldwell has been "a wonderful experience because so few men in their lives have been accorded such loyalty as has been given me."

Mr. Coldwell said his leadership has been "a wonderful experience because so few men in their lives have been accorded such loyalty as has been given me."

"I can look everybody in the eye 25 years later and say, 'I never let you down.'"

90 Feet To Go To Ripple Peaks

Work will start within days on the chambers that will store the explosive intended to blow the tops off the twin peaks of Ripple Rock, navigation menace in Seymour Narrows, 10 miles north of Campbell River.

Col. C. B. North, project manager for Northern Construction Company and J. W. Stewart Limited on the $2,500,000 job, said today miners have driven raises upward 270 feet in each of the pinnacles, and are within 90 feet of the top of each peak.

EXPLORING

Diamond drillers will send exploratory drills outward in all directions to determine the distance to the outer surface of the rock.

While that is being done, tunnels will be driven laterally from the top of the 270-foot vertical shafts, and when the survey drilling is completed, smaller tunnels and chambers will be blasted out of the rock and filled with 1,500,000 pounds of explosive.

40 FEET

When it is fired, it is expected to blast the top 40 feet from each of the two submerged peaks in the heavily-used waterway, and remove forever the menace that has partially wrecked or destroyed 15 large ships and countless smaller vessels, and claimed 114 lives.

Col. North said no firm decision has been made on the date for the giant blast, to be the largest peacetime industrial explosion in history, except that it will be late this year or early next year.

Great care will be taken to ensure that it occurs at a time when damage to the fish population will be at a minimum.

NO TROUBLE

"There has been no trouble on the job, and work is proceeding on schedule," Col. North said.

The Ripple Rock project consists of a shaft drilled downward on Maude Island to a depth of 570 feet. At the 490-foot mark a horizontal tunnel leads westward under water, for 1,900 feet, then divides, with one tunnel leading to the foot of the north peak, and the other to the south peak, which are about 500 feet apart.

The vertical raises drive directly through the heart of each peak and will lead to the honeycomb system of tunnels and chambers that will contain the explosive.

15 New Teachers In Nanaimo Area

NANAIMO—Appointment of 15 new teachers in school district 68 leaves only one major vacancy in the district, school board officials have announced.

New teachers have been named for the following schools: John Barsby Junior High, Gabriola Island, Nanaimo Senior High, Mountain View, Bayview, Quesnel, Chase River, Princess Anne, and South Wellington.

Yet to be chosen is a music teacher for the senior high school.

Last Friday evening the board believed its worries were over when it accepted the bid of Baynes Manning Ltd. of Vancouver, which submitted the lowest of seven tenders and steps were taken to set the project in motion.

Then on Wednesday morning Baynes Manning Ltd. notified the board it was withdrawing its tender.

JOINT TENDER
After a series of emergency meetings the board got in touch with Al Sundquist of S. & S. Logging and Construction Ltd., whose joint tender with Cassidy Excavators was the next lowest bid, and Mr. Sundquist agreed to take the job at the same price which the board will have available.

Bid of the two district firms totalled $89,994.40. The Baynes Manning bid was $80,892.60.

While the two district firms will not be able to begin work on the project for about two weeks, Mr. Sundquist agreed to receive the pipe as it arrives.

Other bids received when tenders were opened last Friday were: Jenkins Brothers, Parksville, $121,237.70; G. C. McLeod Co., Edmonton, $106,814; Canuck Construction Company, Vancouver, $128,448.90; Wade & Wells Co. Ltd., Vancouver, $99,773; Tidewater Construction Co., Ltd., Nanaimo, $137,980.

Ladysmith is interested in the project because the city has agreed to sell a one-third interest in a portion of its Stocking Lake system to Saltair to give Saltair easy access to its water rights in the lake.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Sunday is Solarium Derby Day and Cathie Southern, who has hit these pages before with her imaginative poetry, has again turned her talents to the annual event at Saanich Inlet.

Cathie, who, like many others, knows how much the Anglers-Times derby has helped crippled children at the Queen Alexandra Solarium in past years, has dedicated her latest effort, "Vacant Signs," to Sunday's competition.

The space is yours, Cathie, take it away:

VACANT SIGNS

These signs I see around each day, and oftentimes I try To figure out just why they're there, and who will rent or buy.
Empty buildings, full of space for furniture and things, Corner lots with those "used cars," whose motors hum and sing.
Country homes with water views, mountain streams and fishes;
Cosy little "dream" homes, complete with dainty dishes,
Coffee shops and restaurants, where people stop to chat,
Smart motels and auto courts, with "Welcome" on the mat.
wonder.
But the "vacant" signs I cannot see are the ones that make me ponder.

That empty office chair that waits, on days full-drenched with sun,
While the boss and his executives go fishin' just for fun,
That look upon some small fry's face, vacant, in a daze,
As he dreams about his hero—baseball's Willie Mays.
The vacant tones of Susie's voice when on the phone she chatters;
And how subtly it changes, when it's the "one who matters!"
That vacant space in one small smile as she hurries to meet dad,
"Will the fairies leave me money? Gosh! It didn't hurt too bad."

And last, not least by any means, is that empty room upstairs.
Where a certain little "Curly Top" once bowed her head in prayers.
The vacant bed and silent toys know the story that they tell:
For they miss the little "Curly Top," who doesn't feel so well.
She lies, like many others, on her new Solarium cot,
Receiving care and kindness from hands so skillfully taught.
And she, like those before her, will walk again, and run;
Skip rope and hop through "Hop Scotch" and lead in Run, Sheep, Run.

But before all this can happen, we have to do our share.
We have to let them know, somehow, that there are those who care.
So, to prove that we're behind them, there is one thing we can do:
And that's support The Derby, and make those dreams come true.
Just see that all the ticket books are "vacant" when turned in;
Perhaps you'll be the lucky one and the jackpot prize you'll win.
Just get behind the angling folk and help those youngsters fight;
Show that you are willing to make their chances bright.
Make "This Way to the Derby" a beacon light to glow, Because by chance that "Curly Top" might have been yours, you know.

DIVISION LEADERS CLASH

Power to Test Power

Power will clash head-on with power at Royal Athletic Park Saturday when Farmer Construction hosts Seattle's Cheney Sluggers in a Northwest International Baseball League doubleheader.

With Farmers setting the pace in the northern division and Sluggers heading the southern division, Saturday's twin bill shapes up a battle between the league's Titans and it could be a preview of next month's playoffs.

In their only earlier appearance here this season, Cheney humbled the Victorians in both halves of a doubleheader, by 3-0 and 9-7 counts.

Sluggers had to go 11 innings to win the nightcap and the clubs could be just as evenly-matched Saturday.

Farmers should have a slight edge in the power department. The Victoria club owns a cool .281 batting mark

WAYNE LANTER
... Cheney slugger

while latest statistics show the visitors clipping along with a .267 team average.

Leading the Cheney sluggers against Farmer pitchers—probably Art Worth in the afternoon and 16-year-old Dave Emery in the twilight tussle—will be hard-hitting catcher Wayne Lanter, who is currently rapping the ball at a .367 pace.

Most of the Victoria power should come from Lyall Cornett, leading the club with a .390 mark; Art Worth, .363; Charlie Boyd, .335; and Bruce Carmichael and Jim Harford, each with a .333 average.

Vancouver umpires are again expected to handle the games, probably Ken Van Hatten and Gummy Leach, who turned in a capable job when Young Liberals were at Athletic Park Tuesday night. Starting times Saturday are 2:30 and 8 p.m.

Adding Machines Would Help Here

Adding machines were more the order of the day than score-pads in most minor baseball games Thursday night as scores soared in all but one league.

Only holdout for good baseball was the James Bay Little League tussle at Macdonald Park where Victoria Sports dropped a close contest by a 4-1 score to Merchants.

Ted Smith and Bob Burrows combined mound talents to hold Sports to a single safety for the six innings of play. On the losing side, Tony Suffer and Pete Moody only allowed four hits.

The nightmare action came in the other five scheduled games of the night where none of life-winning teams turned the trick with any less than 15 runs to their credit and three of them bettered the 20-run mark.

BIGGEST ROUT
The biggest rout of the day came in the Fairfield Little League with Britannias taking a 2-3 decision from Public Services, scoring 9 runs in the third and 11 in the sixth.

In the Oak Bay Little League, Northwestern Velvets moved into a second-place tie with Kerseys as they blasted Evans, Coleman and Johnson, 20-6, while in the Hampton Little League, Beavers moved into top-rung tie with Cubs on the strength of a 22-11 win over Totems.

Scores dropped a little in the National Little League where North Kiwanis went down, 16-4 to Gyros and in the Carnarvon Pony League with Jaycees pummeling Companions, 15-2.

Kerr, Wakeman Seek B.C. Title
Three Victoria golfers will be in the contingent of the nine from Vancouver Island who have entered the B.C. Closed golf championship at Vancouver's Marine Drive Club this weekend.

It will be the final test for Willington Cup team candidates.

Heading the small Victoria entry will be Laurie Kerr of Colwood, who still has a chance for a Willington Cup position. Also competing from Victoria will be George Andrews of Colwood and Bill Wakeman, B.C. junior champion, from Uplands.

From the Cowichan Club will come Bob Evans, Clayton Wright, Don Miller, Don Gard and Gordie Whan. Hank Gaus of Nanaimo is the other Vancouver Island competitor.

City Marksmen Set Brisk Pace

Victoria marksmen are setting a fast pace in the 73rd annual B.C. Rifle Association prize shoot at Vancouver's Blair Range with L/S Harry Wells and Edward Henly, a 15-year-old air cadet setting the pace.

The twosome stole the plaudits Thursday as they finished one-two in the Lieutenant-Governor's match.

Both Victoria shooters and Cpl. Bob Taylor of the B.C. Dragoons tied for first place in the first stage of the Lieutenant-Governor's shoot with identical scores of 145 of a possible 150.

In the shoot-off Wells came first, Henly finished second, and Taylor was third.

WINS MEDAL
Henly also captured a BCRA bronze medal for winning the Tyro aggregate competition.

Other Victorians captured 18 of the 40 qualifying berths for the second round of the Lieutenant-Governor's shoot, which is scheduled for Saturday.

Qualifying for Saturday's shoot-off, in order of scores, were: Bob McCallum, RCN; Duncan Payne, Canadian Scottish; G. S. Tory, RCN; Ron Macredy, Frank Drysdale, Franie Morse and Eileen Learoyd, Canadian Scottish; Bob and Dolores Parsons and Walter Burch, RCN; Dave Macredy, Canadian Scottish; A.S. Andy Andrews, RCN; Major A. E. Evans, Major A. M. T. Spittal and Peter Lunn, Canadian Scottish, and Donald McGee, RCN.

Morse Thursday came the first marksman to score a possible in the current BCRA meeting.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Do there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 30-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Georgia Marshall, age 14, of Winston-Salem, N.C., for her question:

What is the Cambrian Period?

The Cambrian Period is a chapter in earth's long history. It started about 450 million years ago and lasted some 90 million years. If we could go back and see the world as it was then, we would feel very disappointed. There were no trees, no plants of any sort on the grim, bare landscape. There were no insects, no birds, no living creatures of any kind on the dry land. For life was in its babyhood, still cradled in the ancient seas.

These warm, kind seas were plentiful. For this was a watery period of earth's history. A Cambrian Period map of North America would be unrecognizable to our modern eyes. What's more, it changed considerably during the 90 million years. For those ancient seas were busy slopping over first one area of land, then another. At one time 30 percent of this continent was under water.

As to mountains, the Laurentians were already old and there was a vast hump of high ground in the north-central region of the continent. But the Appalachians and the western mountains were not yet born. In their places were two deep troughs of land. An arm from the Arctic Ocean reached down the western trough. What is now Florida and New England were cut off as islands by the water in the eastern trough. At one time these waters joined, submerging what is now our south central states. The California region was then cut off from the mainland.

All these shallow seas were fine for the Cambrian plants and animals. They had no chance to develop and improve themselves. All kinds of life teemed in the ancient seas, but as yet no backboneed animals had appeared. There were plenty of plants in the water, but no seaweeds that we would recognize.

The animal kingdom was represented by shelled creatures. The ancient trilobites were dominant in the gentle waters. These fellows thrived, multiplied and branched out in different forms. Actually, the trilobites improved themselves out of existence. Though they no longer exist, they were the direct ancestors of the lobsters, shrimps and all the present day insects. And the necessary steps forward were taken during the watery Cambrian Period of the dim, distant past.

The snails also got started in these early cradle days of life's history. There were also sponges in the gentle waters. There were countless varieties of worms and soft bodied creatures and the seas teemed with bitly animals who were the ancestors of the corals and chalk builders.

The bare, barren earth of Cambrian days might seem very dull to our eyes. But without this long period of gentle seas, living things could never have advanced onto dry land. It took another 70 million years before life was ready for the great event. Then the first plants, soon followed by the first animals, were able to leave their watery cradles and bravely set up housekeeping on the continents.

The old earth has kept a careful diary of all these doings. Beds of sandstone, shale and limestone were left to point out the areas of the ancient seas. Fossil remains of plants and animals were left pressed within the rocky pages of the record. There were living things before this period, but they were too small and simple to become fossils. The Cambrian period is the first chapter of earth's diary which is rich with the records of life.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Barbara Churko, age 9, of Bridgeport, Conn., for her question:

How Are Hailstones Formed?

Hailstones fall out of a troubled sky. Overhead a wild storm is brewing. Air currents are raging to and fro, up and down in all directions. Warm air, cool air, damp air and dry air are in conflict-like opposing armies. Raindrops form as they often do under such conditions. They try to come tumbling down, but this is not possible. For between them and the ground is a strong current of rising air.

Instead of falling, they are wafted up, to colder regions in the clouds. The temperature around them is below freezing and the liquid raindrops become frozen, first into soggy sleet then into solid pellets of ice. They are whirled around until they find another chance to start the downward fall. They pass through a region of warmer air and maybe melt their surface or gain a new layer of filmy moisture. The downward fall is stopped again as the mushy pellets get wafted up to colder regions on another current of rising air. Here their new coats are frozen into outer sheaths of ice.

Time after time the icy pellets rise and fall. Each time a new coating of ice is added and the hailstones grow and grow in size. At last they become too heavy, even for the rising air to carry aloft. Down they crash, all the way to the ground.

Raccoon-Shooting Sage 'Bookworm' on Side

PARKSVILLE, B.C. (CP)—

George Morton Bernard, 85, is known as the sage of this tourist centre 90 miles north of Victoria. Living alone in the bush two miles from town, he shoots raccoons with bow and arrow and reads about 20 books a month, favouring tomes on Egyptian history.

Looking 25 years younger than his age, he cares for his bees and chickens, his alert little Irish terrier and his peacocks. He also proudly displays the stuffed animals that have fallen to his marksmanship.

ATTRACTS VISITORS

People find him so interesting and colorful that he has had 1,270 visitors in the last 18 months. When Field Marshal Montgomery entered Germany at the war's end he wore a dagger fashioned by Mr. Bernard out of a steel auto jack handle, some pieces of burmese wood and ivory from an Alaskan mammoth's tusk.

Mrs. Bernard died some years ago and his four daughters and two sons are grown up and married. Born in Dublin, he raised cattle near Calgary before coming to the island. He took off from Alberta for the Yukon gold rush in 1898 in a party of 10 that did it the hard way.

From Fort St. John they travelled down the North Pine River to Fort Nelson. Three died of scurvy on the way. With no game in sight toward the end of the journey they were down to a cup of flour a day. They had actually gone three days without food when help came.

They got back to the Peace River, built a raft and made it from Fort St. John to Peace River Landing in 18 hours.

IN BORROWED GEAR

"I came out of the gold rush with $15 I borrowed and a dead man's hat and pants," he said. Bernard is a self-taught taxidermist and his living-room is filled with stuffed animals and heads from big horn sheep to seal pups.

He has stalcities from Horse Lake caves, mammoth teeth, fossil skulls, grizzly bear and cougar skulls, polar bears' feet and a zebra skin torn from Uganda. Most of these were sent by relatives scattered around the world. In drawers and desks he has dozens of old sheepskin legal documents dating to Cromwell's day and beyond. On the wall is a picture of the parents of Sir Roger Casement, the Irish-born British consular agent who was executed in London for his part in the abortive Easter Week rebellion in Ireland in 1916 during the First World War.

"His mother and mine were sisters," he explains.

Says Lawyer Horses Can Be Libeled

TORONTO (CP)—A lawyer put the proposition Wednesday that a horse can be libeled. "What's that?" asked Mr. Justice Russell Williams Treleaven of the Supreme Court of Ontario. "Horses libeled? Can a horse be libeled?"

"Yes, M'Lord," said lawyer W. E. MacDonald, Sr. "Any horse or property can be libeled."

Mr. MacDonald was counsel for William F. Morrissey Co. Ltd. and Blanche Armstrong, and in a way, for six horses named Red Nose Clown, Into The Grape, Irene's Orphan, Rabbit Mouth, Stole The Ring and Hot Ice. Miss Armstrong leases the horses from the Morrissey company and races them.

Mr. MacDonald contends on behalf of his client that the Ontario Racing Commission exceeded its authority when it ordered Miss Armstrong and William Morrissey to change the names of the animals.

The commission said it suspects the horses were named to deride rival trackman Fred Orpen. Morrissey denied this and Miss Armstrong said it's plain "ridiculous."

Orpen himself said some time ago they "mean nothing to me."

Wednesday the judge observed: "I wouldn't think you'd be proud of those names. I can't understand anyone wanting to name a horse Hot Ice or Rabbit Mouth. Are you sure there's no ulterior motive?"

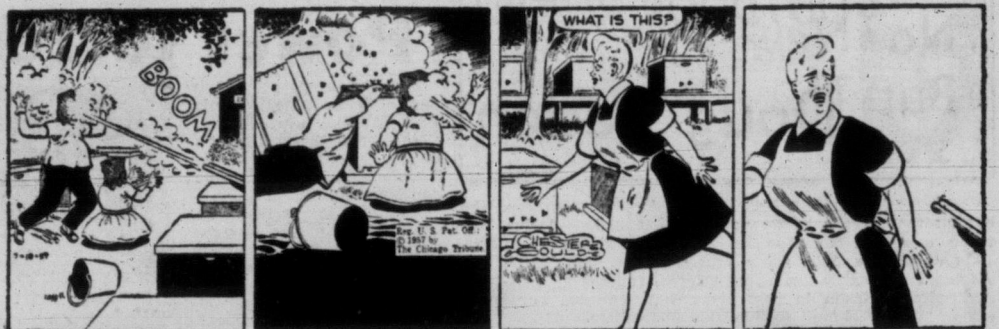

No, sir, said Mr. MacDonald. After all, he said, some years ago there was a horse racing under the name Honest Lawyer.

He said his clients got a letter from the commission threatening action if the names weren't changed. He asked assurance there would be no interference by the commission during the adjournment of the case.

"I don't want my horses libeled," the lawyer said. The commission agreed to Mr. Justice Treleaven's request not to interfere.

Then the case was adjourned until the fall term of the court.

No 'New Look' for Anchors But They Weigh Far Less Now

Technological advances in the marine field have not overlooked the lowly anchor, a humble and often overlooked part of a yacht's equipment, but the most important single item on the boat when needed.

The modern anchor is far removed from the ponderous mud-hook of 50 years ago, being lighter, more efficient, and handier to use. It used to be claimed that the size of boat one could handle alone was determined by the size of anchor he could lift. Today it would be a good-sized vessel.

Contrary to general opinion, an anchor's holding power has little to do with weight. Holding power, for a given type of ground, is determined by fluke area and strength of materials.

One anchor, for example, noted for its great holding power as compared to weight, was first made of forged steel and weighed 35 pounds. When made of high strength steel, the same anchor weighed but 45 pounds and had greater holding power. Later, when made of high tensile steel, its weight was reduced to 28 pounds with another increase in holding power. Now, for those who can afford the price, this same anchor can be made of high strength aluminum alloys and titanium, with even greater holding power and weighing but 14 pounds! Because of required fluke area, all of these anchors are of the same size and require the same deck space when stowed. The difference is in weight only.

Once weight alone determined an anchor's holding power,

Early anchors were merely a stone or similar weight that would sink into the mud or drag over the bottom. Here weight was of prime importance. However, by 1750 B.C., the anchor had developed flukes and was the forerunner of the present kedge of yachtsman type. This anchor with various improvements continued in general use for 2,600 years. It was not until the latter part of the last century that the stockless anchor, invented in 1821 and used on big ships today, came into general use.

The stockless anchor was superior to the kedge type in many ways but its weight was also important and the lighter models used for smaller craft were less effective than the kedge type. Because of this the latter eventually became known as the yachtsman's anchor.

Both flukes are active in the stockless anchor and there are no projections to foul the anchor cable. The kedge anchor has but one active fluke, the other sticking out like a sore thumb, always ready to foul the cable. The mushroom anchor, introduced in 1850 has little value as a working anchor, but is widely used for permanent moorings. It has none of the faults of the kedge, but unless given ample time to work itself into the bottom, it is apt to drag.

An anchor must be constructed to take hold fast. A sudden wind gust, an unforeseen current, or a crowded anchorage may make the immediate anchor action imperative. The crown must be designed to lift the rear of the anchor to ensure quick fluke engagement on any type of bottom and thus bury and not drag.

PROPOSED new $70,000 fireproof wing for Art Gallery of Greater Victoria is shown in model form this week in Eaton's View Street window. Architects are Clack, Clayton, Pickstone. If council approve centennial grant to complete the project, the gallery will be able to show major art exhibitions and house travelling and permanent collections not now entrusted to the old building. Government must approve expenditure.

Centennial Group Finally Agrees On 4 Projects With Pooled Money

A revised centennial project plan arrived at Thursday night will see Greater Victoria pool its provincial grants but spend them on four separate projects.

Proposed by Greater Victoria Centennial Committee, the plan still must be approved by Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils and the provincial centennial committee.

The new plan stipulates a new fireproof wing for the Art Gallery will get $70,000. Beaver Elk Lake park development will get $52,000, $10,000 will be spent on Esquimalt's Gorge Park development, and Oak Bay will receive $8,500 to spend on any permanent project it desires.

DOLLAR-FOR-DOLLAR
The Centennial fund is made up of grants to each municipality by the province of 60 cents per capita. To receive the grant the municipalities must match it dollar-for-dollar. The fund totals $141,408.

Oak Bay was the only municipality to oppose an earlier proposal along the same lines. It would have split the fund $70,000 to the gallery, $10,000 to Gorge park and $60,000 to Beaver-Elk Lake development.

LITTLE DIFFERENCE
A letter from Oak Bay Reeve Fred Norris said:

"The problem has resolved itself to where there are three opposed ideas being clung to by different areas, so in effect there is little difference between individually sponsored efforts and the present status."

Other observers pointed out the final plan, if approved, means each municipality is getting back just about what it put into the intermunicipal pot.

Victoria will put in $65,500 to get back $70,000 in art gallery additions.

Saanich puts in $46,028 and gets back $52,000 in Beaver-Elk Lake park development.

Though the park is city owned it lies completely within Saanich.

Esquimalt contributes $12,460 and receives back $10,000 in development of the Gorge Park.

Oak Bay gives $17,828 and receives $8,500 for a project of its own.

Companies concerned are Pacific Pile Driving Co. Ltd., Victoria Pile Driving Co. Ltd., and B.C. Pile Drivers Ltd. The companies providing for pay during travelling time to and from work, except for 15 minutes of the employees' own time each way.

Piledrivers are members of the Pile Drivers Bridge, Dock and Wharf Builders' Union, local 2415.

Gaglardi Ends Closure System Through Canyon

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Thursday ended the closure system that has hindered traffic through the Fraser Canyon since early April.

He heard complaints from businessmen and tourists along the popular stretch of the Trans-Canada Highway which he travelled Wednesday and Thursday.

"You can't make omelets without breaking eggs," he said. "But I can see this closure is no good. I have now instructed the companies to stop traffic only when it is absolutely essential."

City Pensioners To Sell Handicraft

Silver Threads Handicraft Club will hold its first sale of work in the early fall.

Recently formed, the club is composed of old-age pensioners who meet Thursdays at the Pastime Centre in Oak Bay.

Articles for sale will include ceramics, dressed dolls, copper work, leather craft, children's clothing and knitted and crocheted items.

Proceeds from the sale will be divided among club members with a portion set aside to buy materials.

Yale Rail Slide May Cost Firm $1,000 a Train

VANCOUVER (CP)—The construction company which was blasting in the area of Monday's rock slide near Yale, B.C., may have to pay the Canadian Pacific Railway $45,000. Highways Minister Gaglardi says.

The minister said the railway may make a charge of $1,000 for each of the 45 trains it had to divert during the 60 hours for which the main CPR transcontinental line was blocked by the slide. He said it is possible the provincial government may pay part of the compensation.

The slide occurred six miles east of Yale in the Fraser Canyon, close to the spot where blasting was in progress on a new highway section. CPR trains were rerouted on Canadian National Railway tracks until the slide was finally cleared Wednesday evening.

Referendum Ordered On Saanich Hall Work

Vote Expected in August, Same Time as By-Election

A referendum on the controversial Saanich municipal hall addition was ordered today by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black.

The vote is expected to be held late in August at the same time as a by-election to fill a council seat left vacant by the death last week of Coun. Stuart W. Brock.

The date probably will be set at a council meeting Monday night.

The minister's decision was made known in a letter to Reeve Arthur Ash who has conducted a one-man campaign in council for a referendum on the proposed $225,000 renovation and extension.

The municipality advertised its intention to transfer and if no objection had been made, the minister would have granted approval.

TAX SALE MONEY

Consent of the minister of municipal affairs was needed before monies could be transferred from reverted land tax sale and revenue surplus funds totalling $225,000.

The municipality advertised its intention to transfer and if no objection had been made, the minister would have granted approval.

Logger Pinned With Saw At Throat

Reconstruction of a freak logging accident Tuesday which took the life of veteran logger Robert E. H. Galt, 50, was given at a coroner's inquest today.

A logger for 25 years, he was killed in the Goldstream watershed when a large cedar snag he was bucking fell on his body.

The jury ruled accidental death. Mr. Galt had been working alone on bucking and falling operations, his employer, R. C. Oldfield, said.

Evidence indicated the snag had fallen against another tree and when Galt cut it free it hit a stump.

SAW AT THROAT

Impact caused the butt end to bounce and roll on the loggers' head, pinning him with his saw at his throat.

There was every evidence of death from suffocation, Coroner E. C. Hart said.

The accident took place between noon and 4:45 p.m., when the body was discovered by co-workers Woodrow and Raymond Wilson.

Funeral service was to be held at McCall's chapel today at 3 p.m.

Supervised Vote On Strike Asked By Carpenters

Some 250 carpenters employed by contractors at Kitimat have asked for a government-supervised strike vote, Labor Minister Wickes said today.

The carpenters are members of local 1081 of the Carpenters' Union, and the contractors are represented by the Kitimat Builders and Construction Industries Exchange.

Another 3,000 Kitimat workers represented by the United Steelworkers' Union are continuing contract negotiations with the Aluminum Company of Canada and government conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin.

Staff Training Plan

Staff training officer from Vancouver, Hugh Waller is in Victoria to introduce a training program to the staff of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

His visit to all offices in B.C. and the Yukon is part of a nationwide training program recently introduced by the head office of the commission in Ottawa.

The program includes an induction course, work training program and advance course in supervision and development of leadership.

Board Suggests Increases for Island Nurses

Salary increases for nurses at Ladysmith, Nanaimo and Duncan hospitals have been recommended by the majority report of a conciliation board.

The recommended scale ranges from $237.50 per month for first year general staff nurses who are not registered in B.C., to $345 for fifth year supervisors.

Basic recommended wage for first year registered nurses is $252.50.

The report also recommended that registered nurses employed in a supervisory capacity who have passed an accredited one-year university course in nursing should receive $25 monthly in addition to her regular salary.

The temporary employment rate was fixed at $13.

The board recommended that the contract be made retroactive to Jan. 1 and that it run for two years.

Strawberry Crop Up 27%; Loganberries Surge Ahead

Continued good outlook for B.C. fruit and berry crops is contained in the July 15 estimates report of the department of agriculture.

On Vancouver Island, the latest estimate of the strawberry crop is 64,000 crates, an increase of 27 per cent over last year.

A horticultural branch official said most of the strawberries were picked before the heavy rain earlier this month. As usual the last pickings went into jam.

The Island loganberry crop now is estimated at 55,000 crates, compared to only 15,374 crates last year when many plants were damaged by early frosts in the fall of 1955.

The outlook for the Okanagan apple crop is still favorable, with a forecast of 5,196,560 boxes, a jump of 37 per cent of last year.

Officials say the indications are that almost all crops will show an improvement over last year, but will run close to the 10-year average for the province.

CAPITAL COMMISSION OKAYS MOUNT TOLMIE IMPROVEMENTS

Plans for development of parking facilities and road approaches to Mount Tolmie have been formally approved by the Capital District Improvement Commission.

Work is expected to get under way within the next few weeks.

At a meeting Wednesday, the commission decided to defer consideration of a proposal to build a lookout ramp on Mount Tolmie.

The CDIC also gave its stamp of approval to final plans for beautification of the Dallas Road waterfront and road extensions in Beacon Hill Park.

Gloomy Outlook For Winter Jobs

Unemployment could be a major problem in Victoria and Vancouver next winter.

That is the opinion of welfare workers in both cities who are basing winter forecasts on current unemployment figures.

"Potentially the problem is more serious than at any time since the depression," said G. F. Watson, executive secretary of the Community Chest's family and child welfare division in Vancouver.

"We are particularly concerned about the care of jobless transients next winter."

CAUSE FOR CONCERN

A spokesman for the Community Chest in Victoria said a current survey of the situation here is not yet complete "but there is cause for concern about the coming winter."

The fact that unemployment in Victoria is the highest it has been for several years at this season is the chief cause of concern locally.

The city welfare department also reports an increase in applications for relief from a total of five in June, July and August last year to 14 since June 1 this year.

A spokesman for the National Employment Insurance Office in Victoria pointed out that the number of jobs dropped to about 150 last week, but the figure is still high for this time of the year.

Unemployment is chiefly attributed to the slowdown in building and construction industries due to current restrictions on credit.

"Anything can happen between now and September," the Community Chest spokesman said, "and it may be as much affected as Vancouver where there is normally more seasonal unemployment."

OVERSEAS WARNING

Toronto and District Labor Council is also concerned about unemployment next winter and has issued a statement for publication in overseas newspapers warning immigrants against conditions there.

"We believe it is very important for immigrants from European countries to realize that weather conditions play a very important part in the Canadian employment picture," the statement reads.

"Unemployment will rise rapidly during the winter months and unskilled and semi-skilled labor and building tradesmen will be for all practical purposes unplaceable."

The council also warns immigrants against the "terrible" housing shortage in Toronto, and the Central City Mission in Vancouver reports "a very serious shortage of accommodation."

Art Gallery, Symphony Get Koerner Grants

Victoria's Art Gallery and Symphony Orchestra again this year have been awarded grants from the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation in Vancouver.

The foundation was formed to provide funds for the development of higher education, cultural activities and public health and welfare.

Dr. Norman MacKenzie, University of B.C. president and chairman of the foundation, today announced distribution of grants totalling $67,822.

The Art Gallery will receive $1,000 for equipment to assist with its educational program.

Total of $2,000 is awarded to the symphony "to provide visiting artists, conductors and additional out-of-town and student concerts."

Various UBC projects will benefit by the total sum of $24,262, and the Community Arts Council of Vancouver is to get $5,000 in support of their artists for schools program.

Of course, the cab driver says, it all piles up at the Fountain Circle, but still...

Yes, I'm on a diet. Why am I on a diet? I'll tell you why I'm on a diet.

Met a girl I used to go school with. Hadn't seen her for 15 years. "Hello," I says. "Cheese, you're fat," she says. "How's your folks?" I says. "Fine, but cheese, you're fat," she says. "Whatever happened to old Minnie?" I says. "I don't know, but cheese, you're fat," she says.

Yes, I'm on a diet.

Oh, sure, he'll listen to you with a pleasant smile on his face. But that doesn't mean he's agreeing with you.

This tourist business is all right, I guess, but I'd just as soon they went home. What do they do? Rush in, clutter up the streets, rush out, don't spend any money.

Victoria should develop some sound industries and let the tourists go hang.

Just answer me this one question: are there, or are there not, laws against double parking in this town?

You shouldn't pay any attention to her when she gets angry. If a woman doesn't blow her top once in a while, she'll go crazy.

I see where they are going to put a new flagpole in Beacon Hill Park. What we need more than a new flagpole is a new flag.

If I was playing on a National League team, I would rather be with the Chicago or the Pittsburghs where you can relax.

Sure, I'm a hockey fan but why should I spend $25 for a share in the Cougars? Let the rich men in town pay for the team.

None of which was told to me, I only overheard.

WHEN SUMMER COMES, IS WINTER FAR BEHIND?

A number of Victorians appear dubious about how long the current warm weather will remain.

A check of city hall building permits today showed a boom in furnace installations. It also indicated wood and coal is fast giving way to oil as a domestic fuel.

Since July 10, 31 new furnaces have been installed in city homes. Two were coal and wood furnaces, the balance oil.

"That doesn't count those who may have neglected to take out a permit," an official pointed out.

Medical Offer Talks Set For Next Week

Officials of the B.C. Government Employees Medical Services will meet with Provincial Secretary Wesley Black next week to discuss the government's offer to pay the cost of individual premiums.

The offer was made on the eve of talks between the cabinet and civil service representatives which averted a strike scheduled to start July 12.

EXTENDED TO ALL

The government will insist that the scheme, which is now available to members of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, be extended to all government workers and MLAs.

It was learned today that representatives of the Medical Service met with Mr. Black to learn more details of the government proposal.

A membership meeting probably will be called to approve the government offer.

Leather Merchant Dies at 79

James McMartin, well-known Victoria leather goods merchant, died early today at St. Joseph's Hospital following a lengthy illness.

He marked his 79th birthday last Sunday.

Born in Drymen, Stirlingshire, Scotland, he came to Canada in 1911, and settled almost immediately in Victoria.

He enlisted with the Royal Canadian Artillery in Victoria for service in the First World War, and returned here following discharge. He founded the leather goods store bearing his name in the early 1920s, and remained active in the business until just a few years ago.

Mr. McMartin was a Mason, and member of Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion. He resigned from the Kiwanis Club of Victoria this spring, after many years of membership, because of ill health, and only recently was made an honorary life member of St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society.

He also was a member of the Victoria Highland Games Association, Victoria Lawn Bowling Club, and First United Church.

Surviving are the widow, at home, 59 Howe Street; a son, Thomas M. Victoria; a daughter, Margaret, in Vancouver; and one sister in Scotland.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by McCall's.

Police Lay New Charge In Robbery

A charge of robbery with violence against Douglas Cameron, 805 Intervale, was withdrawn and replaced by a charge of possession of money knowingly obtained unlawfully, in city police court today.

He was remanded to Monday for plea and bail was set at $250.

Prosecutor Terry O'Grady said there was insufficient evidence to support the first charge laid in connection with robbery July 8 of Donald William Carson, 618 Greenville.

Donald Quile, Victoria mill-worker, was charged with robbery with violence and elected trial in a higher court. His preliminary hearing was set for next Wednesday.

Paul G. Cook, RCN, also charged with robbery with violence, pleaded guilty and was remanded to Tuesday for sentence.

Carson said he was beaten and robbed of $110 after he picked up three young men and drove them to Harbor Road wharf.

Mayor Against Park Transfer To Youth Club

Mayor Percy Scourrah indicated today he is against the proposed transfer of Thetis Lake Park to the new National Youth Club.

The new youth club asked council two weeks ago to lease or sell at an unspecified price, the whole park area to the club for development of a youth centre and construction of a drag strip.

The proposal is awaiting recommendation by public works committee.

TOO VALUABLE

Mayor Scourrah said he would "take a dim view of handing it over to anyone unless it was an extremely responsible organization which you would know would be continuing over a long period of time."

"It's too valuable a property to speculate with in any way," the new club has still to name the members of its adult governing board of directors.

Organizer Con Walting asked council to name an alderman to the board, but no action was taken. Club officials claim 700 members.

A large 125-ton span will be floated free of the old Point Ellis Bridge Saturday between 7 and 9 p.m. according to present plans, it was learned today.

A special barge will take the span to a resting place on the banks of the Gorge where it will be broken up.

Time was determined by study of most suitable tides.

John Theros, Brunswick Hotel, was sentenced in city police court today to 10 days in jail on a charge of theft under $50 value.

He stole a $29.95 radio from Hudson's Bay Co.

The Hawaiian Steamship Company liner Leilani will not call at Victoria next January on its special sailing to Honolulu as originally planned.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce had planned to welcome the liner here and recently sent a telegram of congratulations to the company on its decision to make Victoria a port-of-call.

Try Some Unusual Greens For Interesting Salads

By PENNY SAVER

You can add variety to salads this week by using some of the more out-of-the-way greens that have come onto the market. Instead of (or as well as) the usual lettuce. For instance, there's long heads of romaine at 25 cents each and Swiss chard at two pounds for 35 cents.

Those of you who are making salads for just one or two people will find tiny cucumbers at a nickel each useful. Large ones are a dime. You'll find plenty of tomatoes, from tiny to huge, at 20 cents a pound.

Two hallocks of raspberries will cost you 10 cents less this weekend—35 cents instead of 45 cents. There are still strawberries to be had, at two hallocks for 39 cents. Two hallocks of loganberries are 35 cents, and boysenberries are 25 cents a hallock, both down in price from last week.

I was delighted to find frosty-looking blueberries in the stores, just waiting to be taken home and made into a cobbler or pie. They're 37 cents for a hallock.

How about a few exotic touches in your next fruit salad? Avocados, at 29 cents each, and papayas, 65 cents each, are on the local market.

Limes can be used instead of lemons in many drinks and dishes for a change. They are a dime each.

Peaches are 29 cents for five this week-end, and apricots have gone down to two pounds for 39 cents. Soon be time to start canning them. Local rhubarb is selling at 25 cents for three pounds.

Corn is getting more plentiful, and you can buy six cobs for 53 cents, or three for 27 cents. Queen squash is 27 cents for two pounds, and the same quantity of vegetable marrow is 25 cents.

Delicious soft fruit jellies, coated in sugar, are on sale this weekend—I found them at 59 cents a pound instead of the usual $1.

SEATING FOR EATING:

I am a recent bride about to attempt my first big dinner party. Someone has told me that it is now the custom to seat husbands and wives next to each other. Is this correct? And should I have place cards? Also, what lady do I put on my husband's right? There will be no guest of honor and the crowd will be all young couples.

Flavors include grape, lemon, cherry, raspberry, orange, lime, pineapple, apricot and apple.

Cold Soup Spanish Style

Cold soups are becoming Canadian favorites and a version that depends on Spanish sherry for its distinction is made by blending a can of tomato soup with a can of pea soup and a cup of milk or cream, then adding a dry fino or nutty amontillado sherry along with a half teaspoon of basil and salt to taste. The soup should be well chilled and served with crackers sprinkled with cheese and heated in the oven, and glasses of well-chilled dry Spanish sherry.

Louise Davis

The seating of husbands and wives next to each other is taboos as much today as it was in the past and as it will be in the future. The reason is simple. Louise Davis

ple, for conversation can be more pleasant and stimulating when friends and acquaintances sit next to each other. A hostess can't very well take each married couple into consideration by guessing whether or not they would be congenial. So she separates them all. There might be a rare exception, such as a recent bride and groom, but even then it would be better to separate them. Since your party is to be large, it would be advisable to use place cards rather than take up so much time designating where each guest is to sit. At a small party, you can easily direct the seating as the guests approach the table. If there is no guest of honor, it makes no difference who sits to the right of the host unless there might be some newcomer to the group, and, in that case, it would be a gracious gesture to pay her that homage.

Italians Challenge Paris Fashion Regime

ROME (Reuters) — Italy once again will present a challenge to France for the high fashion lead when Italian designers show their autumn and winter collections in Rome today and Florence next week.

Paris, which has dictated women's fashion unchallenged for a century, was first amused, then alarmed, by the Italian post-war bid for her crown.

An enterprising Florentine, Giorgio Giordani, launched Italian designers in Florence in the spring of 1951.

FRENCH CRACKED DOWN
After a season or two, they were attracting so many buyers that French designers got tough. They refused to sell their toiles original model patterns made in butter-muslin—to any high fashion house which showed in Florence. Paris designers then accused the Italians of "cribbing" their lines and forced the Italians to show their collections first.

The Italians, showing before the French, still accurately anticipated the new French line. And in subsequent seasons buyers and fashion reporters in Rome and Florence have been given a preview of Paris.

Competition for Paris has been hottest in the departments of casual and sportswear and accessories.

Emilio Capucci, the boutique king, and Mirza, who makes fashion history in woolsens, have no Parisian rivals. Both sell out their entire collections a few minutes after the shows are over.

Foreign buyers also concentrate on Italian shoes and bags. Schubert is usually a big draw. He makes the gala dresses which so many movie stars and the Iranian Empress Soraya will be wearing.

Italy is not expected to try to launch—for only Paris can really launch—any startling new line. They are expected to concentrate on making eminently wearable clothes for the average well-dressed woman, with accents on color, material and workmanship.

Q. "Is there anything to be done to delay it far longer than we can gain by doing 100 front bends now."

A. You should pull in the direction in which the hair grows. This makes the process less painful and is less likely to cause irritation.

It Was Family Party Night at 'The Gardens'

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Sir Ernest MacMillan said at the start of the concert in the Butchart Gardens yesterday evening, "this is indeed a fair-land."

It was that—but also much more. A perfect summer evening brought out thousands of Victorians and visitors who were loud in their praises of the setting, the flowers and the music.

"It is the Stratford of the Pacific Coast," was a comment overheard.

Somehow, those words and Sir Ernest's delightful opening comment, describe the evening perfectly.

It was picnic night for many—who came early and stayed late. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Warr had with them Mr. P. J. Warr, from Lethbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Davidson were seated on a rug near the rose garden. Dr.

and Mrs. D. A. Clark and Mrs. H. O. English were with Mr. J. H. Clark, San Francisco. Mrs. M. Waller, a visitor from Vancouver was picnicking with Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Bigham.

Mrs. Ivor Burrows and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Falconer were together. A family party on the lawn included Mr. and Mrs. E. Holmes, Mrs. G. Cooke, Mrs. P. W. Holmes and Wendy, Barby and Teddy Holmes.

San Francisco visitors were Mr. and Mrs. S. N. LeFell who were busy—as were many others—taking color pictures.

Mrs. T. B. Lumsden was having supper with her daughter, Mrs. N. H. Allan and Sheila, who are visiting her from Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Young and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mesereau were together; also Mrs. Gordon Litster and Miss Ruth Lacy.

On Lawns, Steps and in Rose Garden

Also seen at the concert were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Nickells, Dr. and Mrs. D. Alcorn, Miss Eliza Stenner and Mr. Jorgen Baess.

In a party were Hon. Leslie Peterson and Mrs. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Campbell and Mrs. H. A. Chisholm, Miss V. Harris and Miss Muriel Evans came from Duncan for the evening and Mrs. R. H. Chappell and Mrs. K. D. Scott from Deep Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Scott and son Robert enjoyed a picnic supper before the concert. Miss Helen Gibson, Miss Merle Baker and Miss Elsie Friend were together. Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Martin were there from Sidney.

Mrs. H. E. Coates was eating with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hagill, Mr. and Mrs. Darylene and Ruth Coates; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Roach were in a party with Miss Evelyn Roach, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Edwards and Miss Roxana Alexander. On rugs on the grass were seated Mrs. Elsie Griffiths, Vancouver, and Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Harrison. Miss Enid McKinney and Miss Marjorie Press were there together. Also Mrs. H. A. Steenson and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Butler.

Mrs. L. Metcalfe had her daughter-in-law, Mrs. C. Metcalfe and Wendy and Vicki, who are visiting from Ottawa, also her son Dennis, with her. Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Bracewell were with Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Wharton. Mrs. Thomas Hamilton was with her niece, Miss Marion Hamilton, a visitor from Bangor, Northern Ireland. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. S. Soulsby were noted in the crowd.

Debutantes of last autumn, Miss Claudia Butler, Miss Colleen "Jeaney" and Miss San Smith, made a foursome with Miss Elaine Butler, Mr. and Mrs. F. Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Capling, Mr. and Mrs. E. Oakley and Mrs. G. L. Landon were picnicking together. Mr. and Mrs. Will Straith were with Mr. and Mrs. J. Corley and Mrs. Anne Waldon.

Others noted were Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Lyne with Virginia and John; Mrs. E. E. Thomson, Winnipeg; Mrs. G. T. Cook, Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. K. O. Clay, Mrs. F. K. Willson, Mrs. E. G. Bousfield, Miss Ada Fox, Miss M. Renny, Mrs. N. Hill, Miss Gwen Scott, Miss Iola Worthington and Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Pickles.

Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Elkington, Miss Laura Magrath, Mrs. George Hall, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McGill, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Drury, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. N. Hope and Mrs. Brook Douglas.

Some picnickers brought their suppers all arranged on paper plates and covered with cellophane or waxed paper; others had silver foil baskets filled with salad. Frances Druce, left, and Betty Trimmer, favored the plate arrangement. Majority brought baskets and thermos bottles with enough left over for an intermission snack.

Beatrice White says "it's an ideal spot for a picnic." And thousands of others thought the same way!

Summer Drama Festival to Offer Varied Fare to Artistic Gourmets

MONTREAL (CP) — North America's second-oldest music and drama festival offers this summer a broad program for artistic gourmets — opera, comedy, six-week season will be Pierre Cornille's rarely-produced L'illusion Comique, a romantic comedy from the 17th century French theatre.

"In keeping with a policy established since its foundation, the society will again this year maintain its high standard in programming its events," says president Robert Letendre. Montreal Festivals was founded in 1936, just two years after the Tanglewood Festival, the oldest continuing music festival in North America.

Glenn Gould, famous young Toronto-born pianist, will be heard with the Montreal String quartet, Aug. 20, in a program that includes Johannes Brahms' Quintet in F Minor.

Jean Meyer, actor-director of La Comedie Francaise in Paris, will direct L'illusion Comique, starring many top French-Canadian actors. A producer of some 20 plays, Mr. Meyer also directs the production of Don Giovanni, which will be conducted by Roland Ledue of Montreal.

Three productions—two of them fresh from Dominion Drama Festival acclaim—will represent the theatre. Beside L'illusion Comique, featuring many of the French-Canadian players who went to France in 1955 with a Montreal production of a Moliere play, there will be four performances of La Tour Eiffel Qui Tue, by Le Theatre de Quatrous of Montreal, grand winner at the Edmonton finals, and the Playcraftsmen of Toronto in On Borrowed Time.

A choir of 100 voices and an orchestra of 85 musicians will offer Verdi's Requiem, at Notre Dame Church, under the direction of Wilfred Pelletier. Soloists will be Mija Novich, Maureen Forrester, Richard Verreau and Denis Harbour. The oratorio will be performed only once, Aug. 27.

Actress in Collapse At End of First Act

WALLINGFORD, Conn. (AP) — Actress Constance Bennett collapsed Thursday night after the first act of a summer stock production of "Silk Stockings."

She resumed her lead role briefly, became too ill to continue, and the show was stopped. The audience was told she would be back on stage Friday night.

Later she was reported resting comfortably in her quarters near the theatre. The nature of her illness was not disclosed.

Who's Who lists Miss Bennett's age as 48.

Glenn Alvine, press agent for the Okadale musical theatre, said she was treated by a doctor. The second act was held up more than half an hour in hope she would feel well enough to return to the stage.

Former PM's Granddaughter Dies at Stratford

MONTREAL (CP) — Mary Frances Abbott, 62, granddaughter of a former prime minister of Canada, died suddenly Tuesday at Stratford, Ont.

Miss Abbott, whose grandfather, Sir John Abbott, was prime minister in 1891-92, was attending the Stratford Shakespearean Festival when she died. A cousin, Christopher Plummer, of Montreal, has two leading roles in festival plays.

Miss Abbott was a member of the staff of the Bank of Montreal here for more than 30 years.

NEARLY LAPPED

Dutch Puffer Smokes Out U.S. Duffer

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Matches were struck simultaneously in Flint and The Hague, Holland, Thursday to light the pipes of two smokers competing for the international goodwill pipe-smoking championship.

As Robert Rudl of Flint and Bouke Dijkstra of The Hague puffed tensely, officials observed both smokers and kept in touch by cable to see how the race was going.

It wasn't even close. The Dutch puffer almost lapped the U.S. entry.

Rudl kept the 3.3 grams of tobacco in his pipe going for 66 minutes and 39 seconds before his pipe flickered and went out. Dijkstra kept his small portion of tobacco alight for 110 minutes and 10 seconds to win the championship.

Baltic Spa 'Rocked'

WARSAW, Poland, (UP) — Poland's second jazz festival ended with a tattoo of gun shots when nearly 2,000 rock-'n'-roll fans rioted in the streets of the Baltic Sea beach resort of Zoppot, it was reported today.

NEVER HAS THE SCREEN HIT SO HARD

Twice, perhaps three times in a decade it happens... one motion picture explores a subject no other film has dared touch before.

"Sweet Smell Of Success" is just such a motion picture. Its "heroes" are a world-renowned newspaper columnist and his man-of-all-dirty-work... It reaches as far and wide as the famed columnist himself—whose gossip is gospel to 60,000,000 believers—and a hell on earth to the celebrities, the senators, all the big names who squirm in his squeezing fist.

Add to this explosive theme an astounding, off-beat portrayal of the columnist by Burt Lancaster... a razor-sharp performance by Tony Curtis... the acid in Clifford Odets script the brilliant direction of England's Alexander Mackendrick... —and you have it... a motion picture that will never be forgiven—or forgotten!

$2.5 MILLION DAMAGE IN WAREHOUSE BLAZE

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Frank Menard, manager of a wholesale warehouse hardware store destroyed by fire Thursday, estimated the loss at $2,500,000. He said the building, opened three years ago, was worth $500,000, and valued the stock at $2,000,000.

Cause of the fire at George Taylor Hardware Ltd. has not yet been determined. Two employees saw smoke and flames on the roof of the shipping room and tried to battle the fire with extinguishers. Within five minutes of the alarm, flames had spread to all three buildings.

The fire could be seen for miles around.

Murder Gang Queen Asks Nehru's Pardon

NEW DELHI, India (UPI)—A former dancing girl turned bandit queen asked Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru Thursday for amnesty for herself and her followers.

The bandit girl, known as Puli, operates ferocious Dacoit gangs in two states of Central India and in part of northern India and is reported responsible for several murders. The government maintains a special troop unit with exclusive orders to capture her.

Puli, who began her career as a dancing girl, was kidnapped by a gang leader named Sultana in 1950. After her release for ransom, the police sent her back to the bandit chieftain as a spy. Recaptured by the gang, she escaped in 1953 and once again the police sent her back to spy on the gang.

This time she stayed. She gathered eight bandits together and went into business.

Now she wants to return to civilization and lead a peaceful life.

PINCHED POOCHES GET BREAK

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Dog-catcher Orvil Curtis is being plagued by children cutting the dog pound wire and releasing pinched pooches.

Last month five canines were retrieved by children and an equal number have been released through the wire so far this month.

Alderman Arthur Jackson was instructed to investigate the possibility of making the pound more secure.

Women Bank Tellers Outstare Holdup Man on Two Attempts

(From CP Dispatches) NEW WESTMINSTER — A timid holdup man was outstared by two bank tellers Thursday, one of whom thought he was "trying to be funny."

The 45-year-old suspect is slated for psychiatric examination after making unsuccessful attempts on two banks within two blocks of each other here.

The man was arrested two minutes after his attempt on the Toronto-Dominion Bank and seven minutes after an attempt on the Royal Bank of Canada.

Police said they are still searching for an Italian Beretta automatic which the suspect said he threw in the back of a truck. They said the nature of charges will depend on whether they find the gun.

The suspect walked into the Royal Bank at 10:05 a.m. and told teller Shirley Gunderson, 23: "This is a stickup."

Miss Gunderson, who was training a new teller, stared at him. No one spoke. Then the man, who had kept his hand in his jacket pocket, turned and strolled out.

Police said he walked over to the Toronto-Dominion Bank and approached teller Mrs. Hazel Wyatt, 34.

"This is a holdup. I want some money,"

"Don't be funny," replied Mrs. Wyatt.

"This is a holdup. I want some money," the man persisted.

"Oh, go away," said Mrs. Wyatt, more sharply. "Don't try being funny."

Meanwhile another employee had tripped the alarm and police caught the suspect within minutes. They said he made no fuss.

TOT HIT BY TRUCK—Marcus Wald, 3, was severely injured Wednesday when struck by a truck 100 feet from his home here. His condition today was reported critical.

DRYDOCK SITE SALE VANCOUVER — CNR officials Thursday confirmed reports they are negotiating sale of the Prince Rupert drydock area for use as a lumber mill site.

New CS Dispute Flares Over 'Breach of Faith'

A new dispute flared today between the government and provincial civil servants. The letter, from Mr. Black to Mr. Bennett, outlined the government's position on association demands, is reported to have been distributed by mail to householders in the Burnaby and Richmond areas of the Lower Mainland.

Provincial by-elections are scheduled to be held in Burnaby and Delta ridings, as well as Cariboo, this fall.

He accused the government of an "astounding breach of faith" in turning the letter over to the Social Credit League.

Mr. Bennett said that Premier Bennett had assured association representatives when the civil service strike was called off that "by-gones would be by-gones" and there would be no more bitterness.

Association officials said distribution of the letter was particularly glaring at this time when Chief Justice Gordon Sloan is preparing to start an inquiry into the question of civil servants' bargaining rights.

Government spokesmen were non-committal on the matter this morning, but observed that the letter had already been widely circulated.

Toronto Telegram Ends Sunday Edition

TORONTO (BUP) — John Bassett, Jr., chairman and publisher of the Toronto Telegram, announced today that the Sunday Telegram will fold after the issue of July 28.

Bassett said that "high publishing costs plus a disappointing circulation and advertising response to the Sunday edition have brought this decision."

The Sunday Telegram was launched March 17 and set off an all-out struggle between Toronto's three daily newspapers for the weekend readership.

The Telegram also said today that its rival in the afternoon field, the Daily Star, has been given until the end of September to be sold in line with the provisions of the Ontario Charitable Gifts Act.

The publication of a Sunday newspaper touched off an outcry by the Lord's Day Alliance, self-appointed guardians of Canada's blue-stocking Sunday laws.

The outcome was that the Ontario Attorney-General Kelso Roberts charged the Telegram with breaking the Lord's Day Act, a 51-year-old federal law which bans commercial activities on the Sabbath. Roberts also laid charges against the Daily Star, the Globe and Mail, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and private station CKEY of Toronto.

THIS MOTHER HAD REASON TO BE GRIM-FACED

Have You Pined Much Recently For Patter of Little Feet?

AMARILLO, Tex. (UP)—A grim-faced woman sat on a city bus Thursday and watched her 4-year-old son with apprehension. The lad was bouncing around with a sack pulled firmly over his head.

A woman nearby asked if he usually played with his head in a bag.

"I put it there," the woman said tersely. "You want to know why?"

"The first thing he did today was lock himself in the bathroom. I had to call a carpenter and have the door removed."

"Then he went out in the back yard and broke some bottles. He spread the glass around and made his little sister walk over it barefoot."

'Ping-Pong' Pops Eyes; Striptease Net Result

LONDON (UP)—Tropical drums went "pong" and the top half of shapely Julie Martin's brief costume went "ping" Thursday night before Princess Margaret's boy friend Billy Wallace and 1,000 other socialites.

It was an impromptu striptease that was not part of the 17-year-old dancer's "shake-it" choreography but Wallace led the cheers of pop-eyed spectators.

Julie set the short fringes of her bikini-style costume waving like Saskatchewan wheat in a high wind as the drums beat out a torrid rhythm during the floor show of London's calypso ball.

Her two West Indian male partners banged tambourines and shook calypso gourds while Julie just shook.

Julie planted her bare feet on the floor and stretched out her arms for a super windup and shake when—ping went the strings of her bra.

The dancer dropped to her knees and frantically tried to regain the errant half, the heat, and her composure.

Wallace and other socialites cheered Julie as she tried to dance on, clutching herself.

She could not repair the damage and the spotlights blacked out, but not before Wallace saw enough to shake her hand after the show and exclaim:

"I think you were absolutely magnificent."

6,000 Attend 'Smash Hit' Symphony Show

By AUDREY S.D. JOHNSON

The combination of perfect weather and a famous conductor turned the second summer symphony at the Butchart Gardens Thursday night into a "smash hit," in the parlance of show business.

An all-time record crowd of some 6,000 turned out for what Sir Ernest MacMillan, of Toronto, the guest conductor, called "a fairyland concert" and many hundreds were turned away because of parking problems.

"An experience absolutely unique among the hundreds of outdoor concerts I have conducted," Sir Ernest said this morning.

On the podium Thursday night, he had led the Victoria Symphony Orchestra through a program which apparently—and rightly—delighted the music-and-garden fans.

"I have conducted in Hollywood Bowl, Robin Hood Dell, and at the mountain-top chalet in Montreal amongst other places," Sir Ernest said, "but this is by far the most beautiful setting of all."

Canada's "Mr. Music" was in fine fettle this morning.

"Next time I would like to sit among the audience and enjoy the sight and scent as well as the sound."

Not that he hadn't enjoyed himself.

"I had a good time," he declared. "There is a wonderful spirit among the players; they have come a long way since I last conducted them."

OUTLINES BOOSTS

"Public information is public information," said Attorney-General Bonner when questioned by reporters.

The letter was written on July 5. It outlined increases granted to civil servants since Social Credit took office in 1952, and said the government could not accept binding arbitration.

Government officials released the letter to the press, and complained that it did not receive adequate publicity.

They subsequently called a press conference to give the "government side of the story" and mimeographed the letter for distribution among civil servants.

GOOD AUDIENCE

Sir Ernest had compliments for the audience too. He found it to be unusually attentive and well-mannered.

"One sensed they were thoroughly enjoying everything."

Besides the "Oberon" and "Pastoral" Symphony, there was a lovely Chopin Nocturne in Sir Ernest's own apt orchestral arrangement; an indispensable Strauss waltz, a tuneful arrangement of English folk songs by Vaughan Williams and to conclude, a gay, rhythmic suite of Rossini airs by Benjamin Britten.

Music lovers began arriving in late afternoon for the concert starting at 8:15 and hundreds brought picnic suppers to eat on the lawn. One family at least was noted with a camp stove to brew coffee.

Good nature manifested itself among hordes of motorists, many of whom walked a mile or more from their roadside parking.

Buses ran a shuttle service. Disappointment of those turned away could be avoided next Thursday when the third and final concert is to take place, if more motorists would double up, making in effect, one full car instead of two half-empty.

Mum' Word for Her, Miss U.S. Disqualified

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The stately, stunning Miss United States who gave her name as Miss Leona Gage was disqualified from the Miss Universe contest today for being married.

Her to the crown as fairest in the land is beautiful Miss Utah, runner-up in the Miss U.S.A. finals last Wednesday night. However, the new queen, Charlotte Sheffield, 20, of Salt Lake City, can't be among the 15 finalists in Miss Universe judging tonight because she did not compete against 32 foreign beauties in the preliminaries Thursday night.

Gloria Noakes, 19-year-old Toronto miss, was among the 15 survivors.

Leona denied tearfully Thursday night and again today that she was married—even in the face of reports from relatives and friends that she was.

Finally, she broke down and sobbed out the story to contest officials then she went to seclusion. This is the first year contest rules have required that entrants be single.

Leona, who gave her age as 21, actually is 18. She was married in Wichita Falls, Tex., Feb. 3, 1954, to Gene Norris Ennis, 28, air force staff sergeant stationed at Friendship International Airport. The couple have two children, David Nathan, 2, and Gene Jr. 3.

French Premier Backed In Move on Terrorists

PARIS (Reuters)—Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury's five-week-old government today survived a confidence vote in the National Assembly over a measure to detain suspected Moslem terrorists in France without trial.

The tough, 42-year-old premier staked the life of his young government on the bill to increase police powers within France itself. The measure aims at rounding up terrorists supporting the nationalist "rebellion" in French-ruled Algeria.

It was the government's second triumph on a confidence vote in the lower house of parliament. In the first vote June 24, the Assembly approved Bourges-Maunoury's severe financial measures to deal with inflation.

OL' VIC SAYS:

Turns out that Miss America is the mother of two kids. That's two who weren't for the show.

If this weather gets much better we'd better start thinkin' about developin' a tourist industry.

There are times when Victoria is a pretty good place to live. One was last night, when the orchestra and the fountains were playin' at the same time.

SLOAN REPORT READY ON FOREST INDUSTRY

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan has completed his report on the Royal Commission inquiry into the B.C. forest industry.

Officials of the Queen's Printer said today all type has been set and printing will start Monday. It is expected to be completed in six or seven weeks.

The chief justice heard 8,000,000 words of evidence during the 18-month hearing.

The complete report will be 900 pages long and will be printed in two volumes. Five thousand copies will be printed.

Soviet Rejects Troop Cut Offer

LONDON (UP)—Russia today rejected the United States' offer to join the Soviet Union in cutting their armed forces to 1.7 million men apiece. The U.S. offer hinged on the condition that certain political improvements are made on East-West differences.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin told the five-power disarmament conference that Moscow could accept the three-stage troop cut plan, but only if this condition is dropped.

Zorin also rejected British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd's suggestion that technical working groups start now in planning the types of disarmament on which agreement in principle has been reached here.

"The Soviet rejections came as authoritative sources said the United States is ready to renounce the intercontinental missile, provided the Soviet Union subscribes to a foolproof system of control."

DISPUTES STATEMENT

In his remarks today, Zorin disputed Lloyd's statement at the last conference session Wednesday that agreement had been reached on some points. Zorin said there was only "relative agreement in principle" so far.

The American arms cut plan called for cutting at once to 2.5 million men, then dropping successively to 2.1 and 1.7 million if progress is made toward solution of disputes like German unification.

Russia's latest offer was to cut to between one and 1.5 million men, but without any conditions.

U.S. delegate Harold Stassen had rejected this because of the insecurity involved in slashing forces while festering problems like Germany, the Middle East and Korea remain unsettled.

14 Die, 80 Injured In French Train Crash

AVIGNON, France (Reuters)—An express train bringing vacationers from the Mediterranean coast, many of them foreign tourists, plunged off the track here early today, killing 14 and injuring about 80.

The death toll mounted steadily during the day as injured died in hospitals from wounds and burns caused by escaping steam.

Devastating New U.S. Air Missile

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—The first air-to-air atomic rocket fired from a plane burst over the desert today with a flash that paled the morning sun.

The air defence command's newest and most powerful weapon exploded at 7 a.m., PDT.

The vivid fireball flared in the target area at an altitude of more than 15,000 feet and sent up a pink doughnut-shaped cloud.

The nuclear rocket was launched from a Northrop F-89 Scorpion jet fighter.

As the rocket's cloud rose in stately fashion into clear blue sky, the vapor trail of an airplane, probably the launcher, cut sharply away to the north.

MUSHROOM SHAPE

The cloud assumed somewhat the shape of the usual atomic mushroom, that the crown quickly separated from the filmy stem. The burst was more than 13 miles from News Nob where observers were stationed.

The launching plane was the leader in a formation of three Scorpion jets. The rocket was the Genie, manufactured by Douglas Aircraft Co.

Power of the weapon was announced only as "well below nominal." A nominal bomb is rated as the energy equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT.

Col. J. H. Atkinson, commander of the Air Defence Command, disclosed before the test that air-to-air rockets with atomic warheads already are in the inventory of this force. The weapons are designed to knock down invading bombers.

Col. Atkinson said defence command planes do not carry these weapons but they could be put into use in a matter of minutes.

HELD MANY TESTS

The program to develop the nuclear air-to-air rocket has been in progress since 1949 and many tests have been run on the atomic device and the rocket. Today, however, was the first time one has been launched from a plane at a stated target.

The target in this test was a pre-designated point in space, the exact altitude and distance from the launching plane of which were not disclosed.

Within 10 minutes after the detonation the cloud was only a faint misty smudge in the sky over the hazy blue mountains rimming Yucca Flat.

When the rocket exploded, five defence command officers were on the ground directly beneath it to study blast and flash effects. They had no protection, and were not expected to need any.

DEREK IBBOTSON ... new record holder

Briton Runs Mile In 3.57.2

LONDON (AP)—Derek Ibbotson of Britain tonight ran a record-breaking mile in three minutes 57.2 seconds to defeat a great international field before a roaring crowd of 35,000.

The previous record was 3.58 set by Australian John Landy at Turku, Finland, June 21, 1954.

The first four runners in today's race broke the four-minute barrier, first time this has ever been done.

Ron Delany was second in 3.58.9. Stanislav Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia was third in 3.59.1. Ken Wood of Britain was fourth in 3.59.3.

B.C. Shots in Final

BISLEY, Eng. (Reuters)—The semifinals of the Queen's Prize competition today produced a strong overseas challenge for the £250 prize and signed portrait given by the Queen each year to the Empire's champion rifle shot.

Princess 'Engaged' Informants Persist

LONDON (UP)—Reports that Princess Margaret's engagement to a handsome Irish peer would be announced today sent dozens of newsmen flocking to Buckingham Palace. But their all-night vigil outside the cold grey walls was in vain.

Nothing happened.

But the rumors still persisted and a London columnist hinted broadly that even if they weren't true, Margaret's interest in 24-year-old Lord Patrick Beresford was something out of the ordinary.

Reports that an engagement announcement would be made after a private dinner-dance given at the palace by Queen Elizabeth II began at a palace garden party attended by 8,000 guests.

Palace press spokesmen said the dance was merely a "welcome-home" party for the Queen Mother, who returned from Rhodesia Wednesday.

Later it was learned Lord Patrick originally had been one of the dinner guests, but had called to say he couldn't make it. He was in Ireland, where his brother, the Marquess of Waterford, will marry next week.

Margaret, who will be 27 next month, has been dating Beresford as often as three times a week. She turned down an invitation to the Marquess's wedding, presumably to avoid offending the Irish. No member of the Royal family has visited Southern Ireland for the past 42 years.

Burial on Nile For Aga Khan

RUSS PRAISE EISENHOWER, RAP DULLES

LONDON (Reuters)—President Eisenhower was praised and John Foster Dulles denounced by Moscow radio today for press conference statements they made this week.

The radio said Eisenhower "hit the nail right on the head" Thursday in saying that the risk connected with holding another Geneva "summit" meeting was insignificant compared with the importance of achieving mutual understanding.

But it said the U.S. secretary of state, in his Tuesday press conference, showed himself to be "completely blind politically" in saying the United States helped to bring about Russian party and government purges announced earlier this month.

Hooded Men Beat Mother Of Liberace

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The mother of Liberace was brutally beaten and kicked by two hooded men who attacked her Thursday night in the garage of the Liberace home in nearby Sherman Oaks.

Police said that Mrs. Frances Liberace, 65, went on an errand into the garage adjoining the home she shares with her pianist son. She tried to return to the house when she saw two men in the garage.

Mrs. Liberace said they pushed her to the floor and began kicking her.

"Hit her again, we'll have something to laugh about," she quoted one of the men as saying.

After they left she crawled into the house and telephoned a friend before she lost consciousness.

Bryant Sees Hope For Gorge Park Aid

Capital Improvement District Commission was "very receptive" Thursday to a renewed request for $106,000 to beautify Gorge Park, Esquimalt Coun. James Bryant said today.

Acting in the absence of Reeve A. C. Wurtele, Coun. Bryant talked to the commission "for about 20 minutes" and produced maps showing the Gorge is the only easily accessible park with swimming facilities in the west part of Greater Victoria.

"I think if more money is to be allocated this year, the Gorge would have a certain amount of priority," he said later, because Esquimalt didn't get a cent from the first grant.

Esquimalt council supported Coun. Bryant's resolution to press for Gorge development at a meeting Monday.

His brief to the commission

Ismailli leaders in pink kerchiefs and golden turbans gathered to witness the burial of their former spiritual leader.

Three sheikhs chanted the Koran beside the Aga Khan's coffin for hours before the burial of the man who led the Ismailli sect for nearly 71 years.

A mausoleum will be built later atop a hill 200 yards from the villa, which the Aga Khan named Nour el Sallam—light of peace. It is on the west bank of the Nile, across from Aswan, which the ancient Egyptians called the "Land of the Setting Sun."

Throughout the night, the three Moslem chieftains knelt by the coffin, reciting the Koran in relays.

In another room of the villa where she and the Aga Khan had spent so many happy winters, the Begum waited with three ladies-in-waiting.

RECEIVES HOMAGE
In his hotel suite, the young Aga Khan received Ismailli delegations in private audience. Each kissed his hand in homage.

The bows which accompanied his passage through the hotel lobby seemed to embarrass the Ismaillis' new spiritual ruler, who would have been a senior at Harvard University this winter had his grandfather not picked him.

Mrs. Linna Toye Dies; Funeral Rites Saturday

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 12:15 p.m. at McCall's chapel for Mrs. Linna Isabelle Toye, 85, who died Wednesday at Gorge Road Hospital. Born in the United States, she had lived in Victoria 55 years, and made her home at 3021 Shelbourne Street. She was the widow of Thomas L. Toye, and member of Court Triumph, AOF.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. P. Miller and Mrs. C. Leask, Victoria; a son, Percy, in the United States; nine grandchildren, and 15 great-grandchildren.

Britons Face Crippling Bus Strike

LONDON (Reuters)—Thousands of Britons cut short their vacations today and started the trek home a day early to beat a country-wide bus strike.

The strike, timed for midnight tonight, will stop most bus services outside the London area. Municipal services in the bigger cities will not be affected but at least 100,000 bus workers with 74 private provincial transport companies intend to strike to back wage demands.

Lines formed at country railroad stations while vacation resorts issued appeals to private motorists to offer lifts to returning visitors.

The state-run British railroads, already operating a full summer schedule, announced it would not be able to run any extra trains while bus companies put every available vehicle on the road.

At Margate, a resort on Britain's south coast, the municipal council said if necessary it will run stranded visitors home in furniture trucks.

The worst-hit areas probably will be south Wales and industrial areas in northern England and Scotland where many firms are shutting down this weekend for annual two-week vacation.

If the strike goes past the weekend it will hit factories and schools in many areas.

MOVIE OWNER SCREENS SMOKE

NEW YORK (UP)—There's a new sign over the candy counter in a Brooklyn movie house:

"Live longer—"

Effective August 1, sale of all cigarettes, plain or filter tip, shall be discontinued at the Avenue U Theatre.

The theatre's owner-manager Albert L. Greene said he started after the U.S. Public Health Service issued its report on the relation between smoking and lung cancer last week. He stopped smoking himself. He asked his employees to give it up.

'Buried' Brother Much Alive

CHICAGO (AP)—A brother and a sister were convinced shockingly Thursday that they had made a grave mistake in burying a man they had identified as their brother. He showed up at their home alive.

Daniel Gallagher, 51, appeared at the home of his brother, Thomas, and his married sister, Mrs. Mary Mellon, 55, and assured them he was not dead, Daniel has lived with his brother and sister for several years—but he has been absent from home for a couple of weeks.

July 10, Thomas Gallagher and Mrs. Mellon identified a body found under an elevated railroad platform as that of Daniel. The man appeared to have died of natural causes. Thomas said the dead man had a defective right foot—as has Daniel. A funeral was held and the man was buried in the Gallagher family plot in St. Joseph's Cemetery in suburban River Grove. Thomas said his brother, father of a son and daughter and separated from his wife, explained his absence from home. He was serving a 17-day sentence in jail for drunkenness.

Too Many 'Softies'?

WHEN I was much younger I spent a couple of months in digs in London with two professional fighters. They were good boys. Both held Canadian championships and, overseas, Jimmy Wilde was keeping an eye on them.

Our association was happy. But occasionally, in the exuberance of youth, they'd catch me out in the backyard of the place where we lived and throw a couple of jabs at my midriff. A jab thrown by a professional fighter doesn't travel far, but it lands with a jolt. When I stopped one of those playful punches I knew I'd been hit.

My anguished reaction used to nearly convulse the fighters. They'd roar with laughter and tell me I had to toughen up. "You're a softie," they'd say.

I didn't suffer much. I could run faster than they could and I found that you didn't have to be an intellectual giant to tie the boys up mentally. A little fast talk and you had their minds off the business of proving my softness.

Still, I was honest enough to admit I was soft by their standards. My design for living hadn't toughened up my stomach muscles enough to withstand short, sharp jabs.

LOCAL ANALOGY

The experience comes back to me as I read and hear about adult reaction to juvenile hoodlums. The average adult doesn't like the bad behaviour of a small minority of punks one bit. Grown-ups have all sorts of vocal remedies to offer. They seldom pass the adult stage.

The adult may be very positive in his views of handling the brawling teenager, but he usually falls just short of making a stand. You've heard it in a dozen different versions: "If any young punk did that to me, I'd beat the can off him."

Seldom do you hear of any juvenile "cans" being beaten off. Maybe that's because young hoods don't pick on adults who would beat their cans off. Or maybe the adult revises his can-beating theories when confronted with the actuality.

There's a pretty rational explanation for such revisions. You hear it from teachers whose associates have been threatened or insulted by swashbuckling young squirts who draw courage from protected positions or from superiority of numbers.

"Look at it this way," goes the explanation. "Say you tee off on one of these punks—and with every justification. Fine, you settle his hash right then and there, if you're big enough. But what happens when you return home and find your windows broken? What happens when you come out of a show or a meeting and find your tires slashed?"

You hear, indirectly, the comment of merchants about Yates Street cowboys.

"Sure they're a nuisance and often worse," goes the report of a store-owner's comment. "Something should be done about them. The police ought to step in. But I'm in no position to lay a formal complaint and identify myself. Plate glass costs money and I like my store."

INEVITABLE RESULT

The result seems inevitable. The young moron with exhibitionist tendencies, on the kid who is bright enough but suffers from some kink the psychologists can explain, figures he can get away with a bit more of the rough stuff. I may be wrong, but it's my belief that all youngsters advancing into their later teens, keep pushing at the bounds of discipline. Often enough they're entitled to. Or at least society has changed so much that restrictions applicable to an earlier generation seem obsolete now.

So you have the punks pushing, pushing—a little bit more, stretching the inch to the foot, to the mile. They're breaking new and, to them, exciting ground in asserting themselves. And they're getting away with it because so many adults aren't prepared to stick their necks out.

The psychology of the street gang that Hitler used for his own purposes gains strength. Who's to stand up against it and possibly take the rap?

It seems to me that the whole adult community will have to make a stand. The adult community isn't conditioned particularly well for the job, but maybe it ought to get into shape.

Perhaps we grown-ups are taking the position I took with my good-natured but occasionally boisterous room-mates. Maybe we're taking evasive action when we ought to toughen up and put ourselves in a position to hand it out instead of taking it.

Complicated ABC Game

By CHARLES LYNCH

NEW YORK—Canada is involved at the moment in a game of ABC's, combined with musical chairs.

The chairs involved are those at the horseshoe table in the chamber of the Security Council, and Canada is a leading player in this game because her name begins with the letter C.

This may sound like jolly fun, but the diplomats don't think so. It was a subject of earnest discussion at the recent London meeting of the Commonwealth Prime Ministers, and it is believed to be the subject of some fairly un-jolly brain-busting just now in the department of external affairs at Ottawa.

The background to the situation is this: The Security Council at present consists of the five permanent members—the United Kingdom, the United States, the Soviet Union, Nationalist China and France; and six non-permanent members—Australia, Colombia, Cuba, Iraq, the Philippines and Sweden.

The non-permanent members sit on the council for two-year terms, and those whose terms are up at the end of this year are Cuba, the Philippines and Australia. (Actually the Philippines has been on the council for only one year—the seat she occupies is one that used to be regarded as the "Eastern European" seat under a verbal agreement which broke down in 1955. After a voting deadlock in the General Assembly, a compromise was reached under which Yugoslavia occupied the seat for one year, and the Philippines for the second half of the two-year term.)

The seat being vacated by Australia is generally regarded as the "Commonwealth" seat, and in the alphabetical rotation within the Commonwealth group of nations, the country in line for it is Canada.

IN TWO MINDS

But Canada, though she probably will wind up taking the council seat and has no qualms about the responsibility involved, is reported to be of two minds about it. The reason for this is that, again referring to the alphabet, the Commonwealth nations from Canada are Ceylon, Ghana, India, and, within the next 12 months, the emerging nation of Malaya. If they come up in that rotation, it would mean four African or Asian nations in the Commonwealth Security Council seat for a total of eight years before another "Old Commonwealth" nation presents itself, in the person of New Zealand.

This would do a lot to meet the demands of the African and Asian group of nations for increased representation on the Security Council, where they are sadly under-represented at present. But whether it would sit well with the "old" members of the Commonwealth is another matter, and Canada is believed to have considered passing her chance for a council seat at this time and perhaps taking her turn two or four years hence. Canada has served one term on the Security Council, in 1948-49.

The so-called "Commonwealth seat" is not the only one that is causing headaches just now.

The strongest contender for the seat being vacated by the Philippines is Japan, and at this writing it appears quite likely that she will get it, though perhaps only after a long and bitter fight in the Assembly. Russia is certain to propose that the seat now revert to a country from Eastern Europe, most likely Poland.

Japan's candidacy creates an interesting dilemma for India, long leading voice for increased African-Asian membership of the Security Council. India backed the Soviet candidate in 1955, and has said on a number of occasions that the seat rightfully belongs to Eastern Europe.

FURTHER COMPLICATION

Japan is an Asian nation—would India withdraw her support from the Soviet candidate in favor of Japan? The situation is further complicated by the rivalry which has developed between India and Japan for the leadership of African-Asian group. India has been the strongest voice within the group for several years, but Japan is rapidly increasing her influence and prestige, and a seat on the Security Council would further strengthen her bid for a role of real significance at the United Nations.

India herself is not presently anxious for a Security Council seat, not only because her Commonwealth membership ensures her of one in due course, but reportedly because she hopes eventually to become a permanent member of the council under a scheme to enlarge the council's membership, now that total UN membership has expanded to 81.

The proposal to enlarge the council has come up several times, but always has foundered on the Soviet Union's insistence that nothing be done until Communist China becomes a member of the UN. India has been doing everything in her power to bring that about—she took the lead at the last session in trying unsuccessfully to promote Peiping's cause in the Assembly, and no doubt will take similar action at the Assembly session opening Sept. 17.

As for the council seat being vacated by Cuba, the most likely candidate seems to be Panama. Here again, the African-Asian group may decide to challenge, since they feel Latin America is over-represented on the council, while Africa-Asia is under-represented.

HOME GARDEN

Start May Be Made On Potted Flowers

There is scarcely a gardener who would not like to have some kind of home grown potted bulbs in flower during the January cold spell, yet it is not easy to accomplish.

A start may be made now, if bulbs from last season are on hand. Freesia, lilia (corn lily), tritonia (allied to the garden m o n t b r e t i a), Sparaxis tricolor and streptanthera (another interesting bulb from the Cape of Good Hope) may all be removed from the pots, of old soil, and started again for flowering next winter and early spring.

Freesia will be the earliest to flower, probably followed by sparaxis and the others. All require what is known as cool house treatment, that is, rooting in a cool, shaded place outdoors protected from heavy rain. After Sept. 1, the pots should be in any airy sunny place indoors, with a temperature not over 60 deg. F., and preferably down to 45-60 deg. F. at night.

It is not advisable to depend on daffodils to bloom by Christmas, in fact the only narcissi which will come in on time for the amateur are the Paper White and Soleil D'Or. If obtainable, these may be planted as soon as found for sale locally.

Hyacinths if planted by early October and rooted in a dark, cool place will bloom early in the new year.

Tulips are somewhat more difficult to handle, since they need to be brought on in a dark warm place after rooting, and only put into the light after colour shows.

With narcissi (including daffodils), tulips and hyacinths no good results will be gained by using bulbs on hand—only top size bulbs will repay the work involved.

CCF Honors Chief, Pioneers

SASKATOON (CP) — National Leader M. J. Coldwell and 36 other CCF party pioneers were honored Thursday night at the annual Saskatchewan CCF convention.

They were among the 130 men and a few women who in 1932 pitched tents and lived on the Saskatoon exhibition grounds while the formation of the farmer-labor party was deliberated.

It was in this group that Mr. Coldwell, now 69, came under the leadership of J. S. Woodsworth who was to lead the CCF through its first eight years.

Premier T. C. Douglas, presenting a scroll to the national leader, said that for 25 years Mr. Coldwell has been given me."

SUPPLE WOOD

Mr. Coldwell said his leadership has been "a wonderful experience because so few men in their lives have been accorded such loyalty as has been given me."

"I can look everybody in the eye 25 years later and say, 'I never let you down.'"

Referendum Ordered On Saanich Hall Work

Vote Expected in August, Same Time as By-Election

A referendum on the controversial Saanich municipal hall addition was ordered today by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black.

The vote is expected to be held late in August at the same time as a by-election to fill a council seat left vacant by the death last week of Coun. Stuart W. Brock.

The date probably will be set at a council meeting Monday night.

The minister's decision was made known in a letter to Reeve Arthur Ash who has conducted a one-man campaign in council for a referendum on the proposed $225,000 renovation and extension.

TAX SALE MONEY

Consent of the minister of municipal affairs was needed before monies could be transferred from reverted land tax sale and revenue surplus funds totalling $225,000.

The municipality advertised its intention to transfer and if no objection had been made, the minister would have granted approval.

However, the reeve initiated a 1,110-signature petition demanding a referendum on the basis the ratepayers had not been given full opportunity to make their wishes known.

Council then sent a letter outlining pros and cons of the situation for the minister's consideration. His order today culminates the dispute.

FAIR WAY

Mr. Black said: "I feel the only fair and reasonable position to take is to refer the whole question to the ratepayers."

"By this means the council will obtain a fair mandate to either proceed or alternatively to come forward with some other suggestion for solving the problem of providing adequate space."

The minister said the referendum on the hall extension issue at the December elections "did little to clarify or crystallize the thinking of ratepayers."

ALTERATIONS

The referendum at that time gave three alternatives requiring "yes" and "no" replies.

A total of 2,110 voted in favor of a hall addition, compared with 1,499 against.

Vast majority of affirmative votes—3,005—were for continuation of study into possibility of a joint municipal hall with city of Victoria.

Those voting no numbered 1,244.

Mr. Black noted that certain ratepayers' associations are supporting the hall addition.

"But it is difficult to assess the extent to which this opinion is shared by the ratepayers at large," he said.

BY-ELECTION

The minister regretted a referendum had to be held in mid-year, necessitating extra expense, but pointed out the municipality has to call a by-election anyway because of Councilor Brock's death.

He indicated the referendum and the by-law should be held at the same time.

Reeve Ash hailed the minister's decision.

"It's a vindication of my stand and I feel it will meet the approval of the ratepayers."

Staff Training Plan

Staff training officer from Vancouver, Hugh Waller is in Victoria to introduce a training program to the staff of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

His visit to all offices in B.C. and the Yukon is part of a nationwide training program recently introduced by the head office of the commission in Ottawa.

The program includes an induction course, work training program and advance course in supervision and development of leadership.

CAPITAL COMMISSION OKAYS MOUNT TOLMIE IMPROVEMENTS

Plans for development of parking facilities and road approaches to Mount Tolmie have been formally approved by the Capital District Improvement Commission.

Work is expected to get under way within the next few weeks.

At a meeting Wednesday, the commission decided to defer consideration of a proposal to build a lookout ramp on Mount Tolmie.

Gloomy Outlook For Winter Jobs

Unemployment could be a major problem in Victoria and Vancouver next winter.

That is the opinion of welfare workers in both cities who are basing winter forecasts on current unemployment figures.

"Potentially the problem is more serious than at any time since the depression," said G. F. Watson, executive secretary of the Community Chest's family and child welfare division in Vancouver.

"We are particularly concerned about the care of jobless transients next winter."

CAUSE FOR CONCERN

A spokesman for the Community Chest in Victoria said a current survey of the situation here is not yet complete "but there is cause for concern about the coming winter."

The fact that unemployment in Victoria is the highest it has been for several years at this season is the chief cause of concern locally.

The city welfare department also reports an increase in applications for relief from a total of five in June, July and August last year to 14 since June 1 this year.

A spokesman for the National Employment Insurance Office in Victoria, pointed out that the number of jobless dropped to about 150 last week, but the figure is still high for this time of the year.

Unemployment is chiefly attributed to the slowdown in building and construction industries due to current restrictions on credit.

"Anything can happen between now and September," the Community Chest spokesman said, "and it may be Victoria will not be as much affected as Vancouver where there is normally more seasonal unemployment."

OVERSEAS WARNING

Toronto and District Labor Council is also concerned about unemployment next winter and has issued a statement for publication in overseas newspapers warning immigrants against conditions there.

"We believe it is very important for immigrants from European countries to realize that weather conditions play a very important part in the Canadian employment picture," the statement reads.

"Unemployment will rise rapidly during the winter months and unskilled and semi-skilled labor and building tradesmen will be for all practical purposes unplaceable."

The council also warns immigrants against the "terrible" housing shortage in Toronto, and the Central City Mission in Vancouver reports "a very serious shortage of accommodation."

Art Gallery, Symphony Get Koerner Grants

Victoria's Art Gallery and Symphony Orchestra again this year have been awarded grants from the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation in Vancouver.

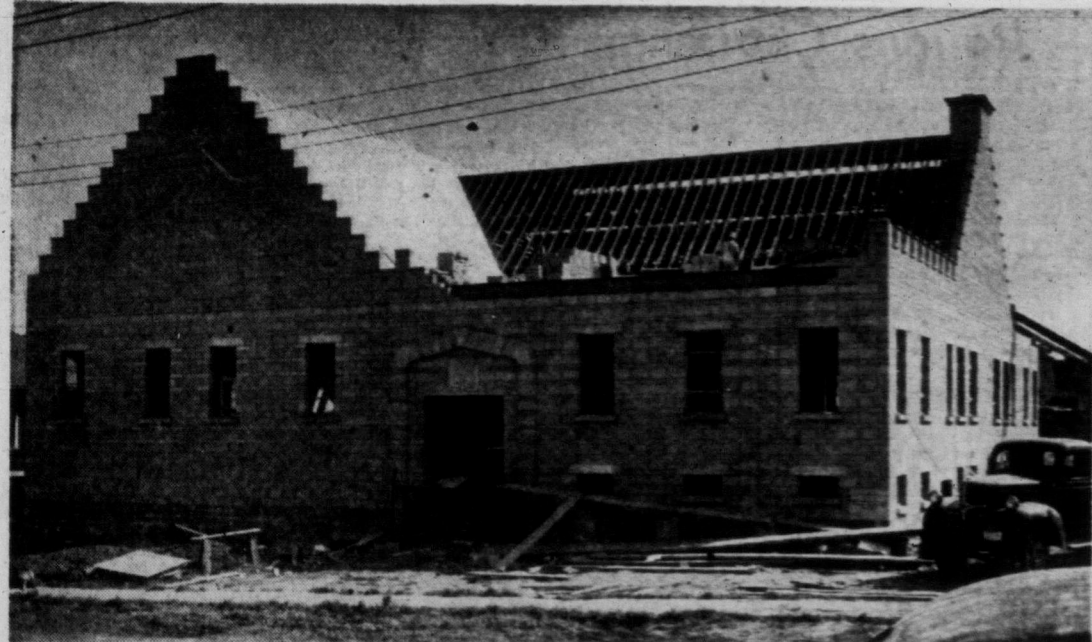

The foundation was formed to provide funds for the development of higher education, cultural activities and public health and welfare.

Dr. Norman MacKenzie, University of B.C. president and chairman of the foundation, today announced distribution of grants totalling $67,822.

The Art Gallery will receive $1,000 for equipment to assist with its educational program.

Total of $2,000 is awarded to the symphony "to provide visiting artists, conductors and additional out-of-town and student concerts."

Various UBC projects will benefit by the total sum of $24,262, and the Community Arts Council of Vancouver is to get $5,000 in support of its artists for schools program.

NEW $50,000 BUILDING of St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society on McBride, near Armouries, is expected to be completed in September; work, much of it volunteer labor by society members, has been underway since December. Edifice will be site of all society meetings, and will also be open for rentals. It will include one large auditorium, three smaller halls, dining room and club rooms open to society members and friends only. Williams, Bray and Williams are general contractors.

MONTE ROBERTS

It wasn't told to me, I only overheard . . .

So the cab driver says these new parking regulations on Government Street are the clear rig. The cab driver says the "no parking" rule between four and six gets the traffic away from the legislative buildings slick as a whistle.

Of course, the cab driver says, it all piles up at the Fountain Circle, but still . . .

Yes, I'm on a diet. Why am I on a diet? I'll tell you why I'm on a diet.

Met a girl I used to go school with. Hadn't seen her for 15 years. "Hello," I says. "Cheese, you're fat," she says. "How's your folks?" I says. "Fine, but cheese, you're fat," she says. "Whatever happened to old Minnie?" I says. "I don't know, but cheese, you're fat," she says.

Yes, I'm on a diet.

Oh, sure, he'll listen to you with a pleasant smile on his face. But that doesn't mean he's agreeing with you.

This tourist business is all right, I guess, but I'd just as soon they went home. What do they do? Rush in, clutter up the streets, rush out, don't spend any money.

Victoria should develop some sound industries and let the tourists go hang.

Just answer me this one question: are there, or are there not, laws against double parking in this town?

You shouldn't pay any attention to her when she gets angry. If a woman doesn't blow her top once in a while, she'll go crazy.

I see where they are going to put a new flagpole in Beacon Hill Park. What we need more than a new flagpole is a new flag.

If I was playing on a National League team, I would rather be with the Chicago or the Pittsburghs where you can relax.

Sure, I'm a hockey fan but why should I spend $25 for a share in the Cougars? Let the rich men in town pay for the team.

None of which was told to me, I only overheard.

WHEN SUMMER COMES, IS WINTER FAR BEHIND?

A number of Victorians appear dubious about how long the current warm weather will remain.

A check of city hall building permits today showed a boom in furnace installations. It also indicated wood and coal is fast giving way to oil as a domestic fuel.

Since July 10, 31 new furnaces have been installed in city homes. Two were coal and wood furnaces, the balance oil.

"That doesn't count those who may have neglected to take out a permit," an official pointed out.

Medical Offer Talks Set For Next Week

Officials of the B.C. Government Employees Medical Services will meet with Provincial Secretary Wesley Black next week to discuss the government's offer to pay the cost of individual premiums.

The offer was made on the eve of talks between the cabinet and civil service representatives which averted a strike scheduled to start July 12.

EXTENDED TO ALL

The government will insist that the scheme, which is now available to members of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, be extended to all government workers and MLAs.

It was learned today that representatives of the Medical Services board of directors will meet with Mr. Black to learn more details of the government proposal.

A membership meeting probably will be called to approve the government offer.

Leather Merchant Dies at 79

James McMartin, well-known Victoria leather goods merchant, died early today at St. Joseph's Hospital following a lengthy illness.

He marked his 79th birthday last Sunday.

Born in Drymen, Stirling-shire, Scotland, he came to Canada in 1911, and settled almost immediately in Victoria.

He enlisted with the Royal Canadian Artillery in Victoria for service in the First World War, and returned here following discharge. He founded the leather goods store bearing his name in the early 1920s, and remained active in the business until just a few years ago.

Mr. McMartin was a Mason, and member of Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion. He resigned from the Kiwanis Club of Victoria this spring, after many years of membership, because of ill health, and only recently was made an honorary life member of St. Andrews and Caledonian Society.

He also was a member of the Victoria Highland Games Association, Victoria Lawn Bowling Club, and First United Church.

Surviving are the widow, at home, 59 Howe Street; a son, Thomas M., Victoria; a daughter, Margaret, in Vancouver; and one sister in Scotland.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by McCall's.

Board Suggests Increases for Island Nurses

Salary increases for nurses at Ladysmith, Nanaimo and Duncan hospitals have been recommended by the majority report of a conciliation board.

The recommended scale ranges from $237.50 per month for first year general staff nurses who are not registered in B.C., to $345 for fifth year supervisors.

Basic recommended wage for first year registered nurses is $252.50.

The report also recommended that registered nurses employed in a supervisory capacity who have passed an accredited one-year university course in nursing should receive $25 monthly in addition to her regular salary.

The board recommended that the contract be made retroactive to Jan. 1 and that it run for two years.

Strawberry Crop Up 27%; Loganberries Surge Ahead

Continued good outlook for B.C. fruit and berry crops is contained in the July 15 estimates report of the department of agriculture.

On Vancouver Island, the latest estimate of the strawberry crop is 64,000 crates, an increase of 27 per cent over last year.

A horticultural branch official said most of the strawberries were picked before the heavy rain earlier this month. As usual the last pickings went into jam.

The Island loganberry crop now is estimated at 55,000 crates, compared to only 15,374 crates last year when many plants were damaged by early frosts in the fall of 1955.

The outlook for the Okanagan apple crop is still favorable, with a forecast of 5,196,560 boxes, a jump of 37 per cent of last year.

Officials say the indications are that almost all crops will show an improvement over last year, but will run close to the 10-year average for the province.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Prairie and Western Command militia dentists are attending summer training camp at HMCS Naden this week.

About 40 members of Royal Canadian Dental Corps have come from points in B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to attend.

A tri-service unit, the dental corps serves army, navy and air force personnel.

Mayor Against Park Transfer To Youth Club

Mayor Percy Scourrah indicated today he is against the proposed transfer of Thetis Lake Park to the new National Youth Club.

The new youth club asked council two weeks ago to lease or sell at an unspecified price, the whole park area to the club for development of a youth centre and construction of a drag strip.

The proposal is awaiting recommendation by public works committee.

TOO VALUABLE

Mayor Scourrah said he would "take a dim view of handing it over to anyone unless it was an extremely responsible organization which you would know would be continuing over a long period of time."

"It's too valuable a property to speculate with in any way."

The new club has still to name the members of its adult governing board of directors. Organizer Con Watling asked council to name an alderman to the board, but no action was taken. Club officials claim 700 members.

A large 125-ton span will be floated free of the old Point Ellis Bridge Saturday between 7 and 9 p.m. according to present plans, it was learned today.

A special barge will take the span to a resting place on the banks of the Gorge where it will be broken up.

Time was determined by study of most suitable tides.

John Theros, Brunswick Hotel, was sentenced in city police court today to 10 days in jail on a charge of theft under $50 value.

He stole a $29.95 radio from Hudson's Bay Co.

The Hawaiian Steamship Company liner Leilani will not call at Victoria next January on its special sailing to Honolulu as originally planned.

Police Lay New Charge In Robbery

A charge of robbery with violence against Douglas Cameron, 805 Intervale, was withdrawn and replaced by a charge of possession of money knowingly obtained unlawfully, in city police court today.

He was remanded to Monday for plea and bail was set at $250.

Prosecutor Terry O'Grady said there was insufficient evidence to support the first charge laid in connection with robbery July 8 of Donald William Carson, 618 Grenville.

Donald Quate, Victoria mill-worker, was charged with robbery with violence and elected trial in a higher court. His preliminary hearing was set for next Wednesday.

Paul G. Cook, RCN, also charged with robbery with violence, pleaded guilty and was remanded to Tuesday for sentence.

Carson said he was beaten and robbed of $110 after he picked up three young men and drove them to Harbor Road wharf.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Try Some Unusual Greens For Interesting Salads

By PENNY SAVER

You can add variety to salads this week by using some of the more out-of-the-way greens that have come onto the market. Instead of (or as well as) the usual lettuce. For instance, there's long heads of romaine at 25 cents each and Swiss chard at two pounds for 35 cents.

Those of you who are making salads for just one or two people will find tiny cucumbers at a nickel each useful. Large cucumbers are a dime. You'll find plenty of tomatoes, from tiny to huge, at 20 cents a pound.

Two hallocks of raspberries will cost you 10 cents less this weekend—35 cents instead of 45 cents. There are still strawberries to be had, at two hallocks for 39 cents. Two hallocks of loganberries are 35 cents, and boysenberries are 25 cents a hallock, both down in price from last week.

I was delighted to find frosty-looking blueberries in the stores, just waiting to be taken home and made into a cobbler or pie. They're 37 cents for a hallock.

How about a few exotic touches in your next fruit salad? Avocados, at 29 cents each, and papayas, 65 cents each, are on the local market.

Limes can be used instead of lemons in many drinks and dishes for a change. They are a dime each.

Peaches are 29 cents for five this week-end, and apricots have gone down to two pounds for 39 cents. Soon be time to start canning them. Local rhubarb is selling at 25 cents for three pounds.

Corn is getting more plentiful, and you can buy six cobs for 53 cents, or three for 27 cents. Queen squash is 27 cents for two pounds, and the same quantity of vegetable marrow is 25 cents.

Delicious soft fruit jellies, coated in sugar, are on sale this weekend—I found them at 59 cents a pound instead of the usual $1.

SEATING FOR EATING:

I am a recent bride about to attempt my first big dinner party. Someone has told me that it is now the custom to seat husbands and wives next to each other. Is this correct? And should I have place cards? Also, what lady do I put on my husband's right? There will be no guest of honor—and the crowd will be all young couples.

Louise Davis answers:

The seating of husbands and wives next to each other is as much a taboo as it was in the past and as it will be in the future. The reason is simple. Louise Davis

ple, for conversation can be more pleasant and stimulating when friends and acquaintances sit next to each other. A hostess can't very well take each married couple into consideration by guessing whether or not they would be congenial. So she separates them all. There might be a rare exception, such as a recent bride and groom, but even then it would be better to separate them. Since your party is to be large, it would be advisable to use place cards rather than take up so much time designating where each guest is to sit. At a small party, you can easily direct the seating as the guests approach the table. If there is no guest of honor, it makes no difference who sits to the right of the host unless there might be some newcomer to the group, and in that case, it would be a gracious gesture to place her that homage.

Italians Challenge Paris Fashion Regime

ROME (Reuters) — Italy once again will present a challenge to France for the high fashion lead when Italian designers show their autumn and winter collections in Rome today and Florence next week.

Paris, which has dictated women's fashion unchallenged for a century, was first amused, then alarmed, by the Italian post-war bid for her crown.

An enterprising Florentine, Giorgio Giorgini, launched Italian designers in Florence in the spring of 1951.

FRENCH CRACKED DOWN
After a season or two, they were attracting so many buyers that French designers got tough. They refused to sell their toiles original model patterns made in entire collections a few minutes after the shows are over. Foreign buyers also concentrate on Italian shoes and bags. Schubert is usually a big draw. He makes the gala dresses which so many movie stars and the Iranian Empress Soraya will be wearing. Italy is not expected to try to

The Italians, showing before the French, still accurately anticipated the new French line. And in subsequent seasons buyers and fashion reporters in Rome and Florence have been given a preview of Paris.

Competition for Paris has been hottest in the departments of casual and sportswear and accessories. Emilio Capucci, the boutique king, and Mirsa, who makes fashion history in woolsens, have no Parisian rivals. Both sell out their

She Hears Front Bends Keep Movie Stars Slim

Q. "Is there anything to be gained by doing 100 front bends now."

A. "Does it make any difference in which direction one pulls when removing hair with the tweezers from the brows or the chin?"

A. You should pull in the direction in which the hair grows. This makes the process less painful and is less likely to cause irritation. If you would like my exercises for the waist and abdomen, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 5 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Spanish Mushrooms — The Spanish love mushrooms, and one of the best ways of serving them is to saute them lightly (or you can use the canned variety already broiled), mixing a cup full with a diced garlic clove, a quarter-cup of Spanish olive oil and two tablespoons of vinegar. Chill them overnight.

Q. "What can I do about some scars on my face? Is there any cream which will remove them?"

A. I do not know of any. Some folk believe that nightly massage with cocoa butter will help. Time usually dims them.

Q. "Please tell me how much overweight I am. I am 5 feet four inches tall and weigh 145 pounds. What should I weigh? My measurements are bust 36, waist 28 and hips 40 inches."

A. You are about 10 pounds too much. You should lose two inches from the hips. Take hip slimming exercise while you diet.

Q. "I have a friend who eats much more than I do and has a much thinner figure. I cannot understand why this is."

A. Individual metabolism makes a difference. Also, your friend may be much more active than you are. Q. "Why does hair turn darker as one grows older?"

A. Hair color usually changes just as skin tone does. It is no doubt a question of changes in the bodily functions and organs, a natural part of aging. Some day they may find out how to overcome the whole process, or at least to

RUSS PRAISE EISENHOWER, RAP DULLES

LONDON (Reuters)—President Eisenhower was praised and John Foster Dulles denounced by Moscow radio today for press conference statements they made this week.

The radio said Eisenhower "hit the nail right on the head" Thursday in saying that the risk connected with holding another Geneva "summit" meeting was insignificant compared with the importance of achieving mutual understanding.

But it said the U.S. secretary of state, in his Tuesday press conference, showed himself to be "completely blind politically" in saying the United States helped to bring about Russian party and government purges announced earlier this month.

Hooded Men Beat Mother Of Liberace

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The mother of Liberace was brutally beaten and kicked by two hooded men who attacked her Thursday night in the garage of the Liberace home in nearby Sherman Oaks.

Police said that Mrs. Frances Liberace, 65, went on an errand into the garage adjoining the home she shares with her pianist son. She tried to return to the house when she saw two men in the garage.

Mrs. Liberace said they pushed her to the floor and began kicking her.

"Hit her again, we'll have something to laugh about," she quoted one of the men as saying.

After they left she crawled into the house and telephoned a friend before she lost consciousness.

A physician treated her for multiple bruises and a possible back injury.

Police said that Mrs. Frances Liberace, 65, went on an errand into the garage adjoining the home she shares with her pianist son. She tried to return to the house when she saw two men in the garage.

Mrs. Liberace said they pushed her to the floor and began kicking her.

"Hit her again, we'll have something to laugh about," she quoted one of the men as saying.

After they left she crawled into the house and telephoned a friend before she lost consciousness.

A physician treated her for multiple bruises and a possible back injury.

Small leaders in pink kerchiefs and golden turbans gathered to witness the burial of their former spiritual leader.

Three sheikhs chanted the Koran beside the Aga Khan's coffin for hours before the burial of the man who led the Ismaili sect for nearly 71 years.

A mausoleum will be built later atop a hill 200 yards from the villa, which the Aga Khan named Nour el Salim—light of peace. It is on the west bank of the Nile, across from Aswan, which the ancient Egyptians called the "Land of the Setting Sun."

Throughout the night, the three Moslem chieftains knelt by the coffin, reciting the Koran in relays.

In another room of the villa where she and the Aga Khan had spent so many happy winters, the Begum waited with three ladies-in-waiting.

RECEIVES HOMAGE
In his hotel suite, the young Aga Khan received Ismaili delegations in private audience. Each kissed his hand in homage.

The bows which accompanied his passage through the hotel lobby seemed to embarrass the Ismaili new spiritual ruler, who would have been a senior at Harvard University this winter had his grandfather not picked him.

Bryant Sees Hope For Gorge Park Aid

Capital Improvement District Commission was "very receptive" Thursday to a renewed request for $106,000 to beautify Gorge Park, Esquimalt Coun. James Bryant said today.

Acting in the absence of Reeve A. C. Wurtele, Coun. Bryant talked to the commission "for about 20 minutes" and produced maps showing the Gorge is the only easily accessible park with swimming facilities in the west part of Greater Victoria.

"I think if more money is to be allocated this year the Gorge would have a certain amount of priority," he said later, because Esquimalt didn't get a cent from the first grant.

Esquimalt council supported Coun. Bryant's resolution to press for Gorge development at a meeting Monday.

His brief to the commission stressed that the Gorge property is dedicated in perpetuity, is close to the city and accessible by bus and car, and the waterway, particularly the Esquimalt side, has been declared fit for swimming by the board of health.

Coun. Bryant also suggested highlighting a "two-way" waterfall beneath Gorge bridge as a unique tourist attraction.

"As far as I know there is only one other such phenomenon in Canada, and that is on the Atlantic Coast," he said.

MOVIE OWNER SCREENS SMOKE

NEW YORK (UP)—There's a new sign over the candy counter in a Brooklyn movie house: "Live longer—"

"Reach for a sweet—instead of a smoke."

"Effective August 1, sale of all cigarettes, plain or filter tip, shall be discontinued at the Avenue U Theatre."

The theatre's owner-manager Albert L. Greene said he started after the U.S. Public Health Service issued its report on the relation between smoking and lung cancer last week. He asked his employees to give it up.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Sunday is Solarium Derby Day and Cathie Southern, who has hit these pages before with her imaginative poetry, has again turned her talents to the annual event at Saanich Inlet. Cathie, who, like many others, knows how much the Anglers Times Derby has helped crippled children at the Queen Alexandra Solarium in past years, has dedicated her latest effort, "Vacant Signs," to Sunday's competition.

The space is yours, Cathie, take it away:

VACANT SIGNS

These signs I see around each day, and oftentimes I try To figure out just why they're there, and who will rent or buy.

Empty buildings, full of space for furniture and things, Corner lots with those "used cars," whose motors hum and sing.

Country homes with water views, mountain streams and fishes; Cosy little "dream" homes, complete with dainty dishes, Coffee shops and restaurants, where people stop to chat, Smart motels and auto courts, with "Welcome" on the mat.

All these are plainly out in sight, with nothing left to wonder. But the "vacant" signs I cannot see are the ones that make me ponder.

That empty office chair that waits, on days full-drenched with sun, While the boss and his executives go fishin' just for fun.

That look upon some small fry's face, vacant, in a daze, As he dreams about his hero—baseball's Willie Mays. The vacant tones of Susie's voice when on the phone she chatters:

And how subtly it changes, when it's the "one who matters!"

That vacant space in one small smile as she hurries to meet dad.

"Will the fairies leave me money? Gosh! It didn't hurt too bad."

And last, not least by any means, is that empty room upstairs.

Where a certain little "Curly Top" once bowed her head in prayers.

The vacant bed and silent toys know the story that they tell; For they miss the little "Curly Top," who doesn't feel so well.

She lies, like many others, on her new Solarium cot, Receiving care and kindness from hands so skillfully taught.

And she, like those before her, will walk again, and run; Skip rope and hop through "Hop Scotch" and lead in Run, Sheep, Run.

But before all this can happen, we have to do our share. We have to let them know, somehow, that there are those who care.

So, to prove that we're behind them, there is one thing we can do:

And that's support The Derby, and make those dreams come true.

Just see that all the ticket books are "vacant" when "turned in."

Perhaps you'll be the lucky one and the jackpot prize you'll win.

Just get behind the angling folk and help those youngsters fight.

Show that you are willing to make their chances bright. Make "This Way to the Derby" a beacon light to glow.

Because by chance that "Curly Top" might have been yours, you know.

DIVISION LEADERS CLASH

Power to Test Power

Power will clash head-on with power at Royal Athletic Park Saturday when Farmer Construction hosts Seattle's Cheney Sluggers in a Northwest International Baseball League doubleheader.

With Farmers setting the pace in the northern division and Sluggers heading the southern division, Saturday's twin bill shapes up a battle between the league's Titans and it could be a preview of next month's playoffs.

In their only earlier appearance here this season, Cheney humbled the Victorians in both halves of a doubleheader, by 3-0 and 9-7 counts. Sluggers had to go 11 innings to win the nightcap and the clubs could be just as evenly-matched Saturday.

Farmers should have a slight edge in the power department. The Victoria club owns a cool .281 batting mark while latest statistics show the visitors clipping along with a .267 team average.

WAYNE LANTER
... Cheney slugger

Leading the Cheney sluggers against Farmer pitchers—probably Art Worth in the afternoon and 16-year-old Dave Emery in the twilight tussle—will be hard-hitting catcher Wayne Lanter, who is currently rapping the ball at a .367 pace.

Most of the Victoria power should come from Lyall Corbett, leading the club with a .330 mark; Art Worth, .363; Charlie Boyd, .335, and Bruce Carmichael and Jim Harford, each with a .333 average.

Vancouver umpires are again expected to handle the games, probably Ken Van Hatten and Gummy Leach, who turned in a capable job when Young Liberals were at Athletic Park Tuesday night. Starting times Saturday are 2:30 and 8 p.m.

Victoria marksmen are setting a fast pace in the 73rd annual B.C. Rifle Association prize shoot at Vancouver's Blair Range with L. S. Harry Wells and Edward Henly, a 15-year-old air cadet setting the pace.

The twosome stole the plaudits Thursday as they finished one-two in the Lieutenant-Governor's match.

Both Victoria shooters and Cpl. Bob Taylor of the B.C. Dragoons tied for first place in the first stage of the Lieutenant-Governor's shoot with identical scores of 145 of a possible 150.

Princess 'Engaged' Informants Persist

LONDON (UP) — Reports that Princess Margaret's engagement to a handsome Irish peer would be announced today sent dozens of newsmen flocking to Buckingham Palace. But their all-night vigil outside the cold grey walls was in vain. Nothing happened.

But the rumors still persisted and a London columnist hinted broadly that even if they weren't true, Margaret's interest in 24-year-old Lord Patrick Beresford was something out of the ordinary.

Reports that an engagement announcement would be made after a private dinner-dance given at the palace by Queen Elizabeth II began at a palace garden party attended by 8,000 guests.

Palace press spokesmen said the dance was merely a "welcome-home" party for the Queen Mother, who returned from Rhodesia Wednesday.

Later it was learned Lord Patrick Beresford had been one of the dinner guests, but had called to say he couldn't make it. He was in Ireland, where his brother, the Marquess of Waterford, will marry next week.

Margaret, who will be 27 next month, has been dating Beresford as often as three times a week. She turned down an invitation to the Marquess' wedding, presumably to avoid offending the Irish. No member

'Ping-Pong' Pops Eyes; Striptease Net Result

LONDON (UP) — Tropical drums went "pong" and the top half of shapely Julie Martin's brief costume went "ping" Thursday night before Princess Margaret's boy friend Billy Wallace and 1,000 other socialites.

It was an impromptu striptease that was not part of the 17-year-old dancer's "shake-it" choreography but Wallace led the cheers of pop-eyed spectators.

Julie set the short fringes of her bikini-style costume waving like Saskatchewan wheat in a high wind as the drums beat out a torrid rhythm during the floor show of London's calypso ball.

Her two West Indian male partners banged tambourines and shook calypso gourds while Julie just shook.

Julie planted her bare feet on the floor and stretched out her arms for a super windup and shake when—ping went the strings of her bra.

The dancer dropped to her knees and frantically tried to regain the errant half, the bra, and her composure.

Wallace and other socialites cheered Julie as she tried to dance on, clutching herself.

She could not repair the damage and the spotlights blacked out, but not before Wallace saw enough to shake her hand after the show and exclaim:

"I think you were absolutely magnificent."

French Premier Backed In Move on Terrorists

PARIS (Reuters) — Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury's five-week-old government today survived a confidence vote in the National Assembly over a measure to detain suspected Moslem terrorists in France without trial.

The tough, 42-year-old premier stated the life of his young government on the bill to increase police powers within France itself. The measure aims at rounding up terrorists supporting the nationalist rebellion in French-ruled Algeria.

It was the government's second triumph on a confidence vote in the lower house of parliament. In the first vote June 24, the Assembly approved Bourges-Maunoury's severe financial measures to deal with inflation.

General Bonner when questioned by reporters.

The letter was written on July 5. It outlined increases granted to civil servants since Social Credit took office in 1952, and said the government could not accept binding arbitration.

Government officials released the letter to the press, and complained that it did not receive adequate publicity.

They subsequently called a press conference to give the "government side of the story" and mimeographed the letter for distribution among civil servants.

... SYMPHONY

was a lovely Chopin Nocturne in Sir Ernest's own apt orchestral arrangement; an indispensable Strauss waltz, a tuneful arrangement of English folk songs by Vaughan Williams and to conclude, a gay, rhythmic suite of Rossini airs by Benjamin Britten.

Music lovers began arriving in late afternoon for the concert starting at 8:15 and hundreds brought picnic suppers to eat on the lawn. One family at least was noted with a camp stove to brew coffee.

Good nature manifested itself among hordes of motorists, many of whom walked a mile or more from their roadside parking.

Buses ran a shuttle service. Disappointment of those turned away could be avoided next Thursday when the third and final concert is to take place. If more motorists would double up, making in effect, one full car instead of two half empty.

What is the Cambrian Period?

The Cambrian Period is a chapter in earth's long history. It started about 450 million years ago and lasted some 90 million years. If we could go back and see the world as it was then, we would feel very disappointed. There were no trees, no plants of any sort on the grim, bare landscape. There were no insects, no birds, no living creatures of any kind on the dry land. For life was in its babyhood, still cradled in the ancient seas.

These warm, kind seas were plentiful. For this was a watery period of earth's history. A Cambrian Period map of North America would be unrecognizable to our modern eyes. What's more, it changed considerably during the 90 million years. For those ancient seas were busy sloping over first one area of land, then another. At one time 30 percent of this continent was under water.

As to mountains, the Laurentians were already old and there was a vast hump of high ground in the north central region of the continent. But the Appalachians and the western mountains were not yet born. In their places were two deep troughs of land. An arm from the Arctic Ocean reached down the western trough. What is now Florida and New England were cut off as islands by the water in the eastern trough. At one time these waters joined, submerging what is now our south-central states. The California region was then cut off from the mainland.

All these shallow seas were fine for the Cambrian plants and animals. They had a chance to develop and improve themselves. All kinds of life teemed in the ancient seas, but as yet no backbone animals had appeared. There were plenty of plants in the water, but no seaweeds that we would recognize.

The animal kingdom was represented by shelled creatures. The ancient trilobites were dominant in the gentle waters. These fellows thrived, multiplied and branched out into different forms. Actually, the trilobites improved themselves out of existence. Though they no longer exist, they were the direct ancestors of the lobsters, shrimps and all the present day insects. And the necessary steps forward were taken during the watery Cambrian Period of the dim, distant past. The snails also got started in these early cradle days of life's history. There were also sponges in the gentle waters. There were countless varieties of worms and soft bodied creatures and the seas teemed with bitzy animals who were the ancestors of the corals and chalk builders.

The bare, barren earth of Cambrian days might seem very dull to our eyes. But without this long period—of gentle seas, living things could never have advanced onto dry land. It took another 70 million years before life was ready for the great event. Then the first plants, soon followed by the first animals, were able to leave their watery cradles and bravely set up housekeeping on the continents.

The old earth has kept a careful diary of all these doings. Beds of sandstone, shale and limestone were left to point out the areas of the ancient seas. Fossil remains of plants and animals were left pressed within the rocky pages of the record. There were living things before this period, but they were too small and simple to become fossils. The Cambrian period is the first chapter of earth's diary which is rich with the records of life.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Barbara Churko, age 9, of Bridgeport, Conn., for her question:

How Are Hailstones Formed?

Hailstones fall out of a troubled sky. Overhead a wild storm is brewing. Air currents are raging to and fro, up and down in all directions. Warm air, cool air, damp air and dry air are in conflict like opposing armies. Bandrols form as they often do under such conditions. They try to come tumbling down, but this is not possible. For between them and the ground is a strong current of rising air.

Instead of falling, they are wafted up, to colder regions in the clouds. The temperature around them is below freezing and the liquid raindrops become frozen, first into soggy sleet then into solid pellets of ice. They are whirled around until they find another chance to pass through a region of warmer air and maybe melt their surface or gain a new layer of filmy moisture. The downward fall is stopped again as the mushy pellets get wafted up to colder regions on another current of rising air. Here their new coats are frozen into outer sheaths of ice.

Time after time the icy pellets rise and fall. Each time a new coating of ice is added and the hailstones grow and grow in size. At last they become too heavy, even for the rising air to carry aloft. Down they crash, all the way to the ground.
